Good-bye to Tom Taggart.

LATEST INFORMATION about Calvin Coolidge, now living in his half of a little two-family house in Northampton, Mass. He will NOT practice law. That's because he would not want to capitalize his influence before a jury or a Supreme Court judge. He does not say so, but everyone knows it.

That decision will cost Mr. Coolidge at least $250,000 a year.

Mr. Coolidge has contracted to write a number of magazine articles for Cosmopolitan Magazine, but does not intend to become a regular magazine writer.

He thought his talent lies in another direction.

He might interest fathers and mothers, and their wiser sons and daughters, by a series of magazine articles on the importance of thrift.

He could interest the whole country with articles on "How to run for office 18 or 20 times and be elected every time."

Mr. Coolidge, who has never been to Europe, says there are many things in the United States that he must see, and Europe can wait.

This will strike Europe as very "provincial." It will strike the United States as common sense.

Tom Taggart of Indiana is dead. He had an interesting life while it lasted, and it lasted 72 years. He was a political boss for a generation, controlling his state. He defeated Champ Clark and nominated Woodrow Wilson for the presidency.

Now that he is in Heaven, and presumably knows everything, Mr. Taggart knows just how useful he was when his influence gave Woodrow Wilson the presidency.

Sir Oliver Lodge, an old man, heart-broken by the death of his wife, reports that she has sent messages, since her death, "she met and was welcomed by her beloved son and daughter and was allowed to send us a characteristic and evidential message before being taken by them to rest and recuperation."

Anything that comforts sorrow is welcome and good, the belief that friends can talk to us from the other side of the grave, the more widespread belief that all of the dead, except the bad, are waiting with wings, harps and happy songs to welcome us when we arrive.

The one to be pitied is he who, like Herbert Spencer, is forced to say: "My intelligence forbids me to hope for anything but annihilation after this life."

Fortunately, HOPE itself is evidence of something better than annihilation. Why should useless cruelty condemn the human race to hope for that which cannot be?

Hollywood is horrified by revelations concerning drug addicts and determined, as it should be, to wipe out the drug trade and punish doctors that prescribe drugs, with safety for themselves and destruction for their patients.

The great danger in drug addiction is not the suffering of victims, but the fact that drug addicts often seek to inflict the drug curse on those free of the evil.

For that reason drug victims may properly be classed, for the general protection, with lepers and confined on an island or in some other isolated place until thoroughly cured.

As to the dope pedlars and dope doctors, their crime is worse than murder, and their punishment should be imprisonment for life without hope for pardon.

The pioneer's path is rough, on the frontier or in the field of new ideas.

David G. Buick died yesterday of cancer, 74 years old, A POOR MAN. He was rich once. Twenty-eight years ago, convinced that the "horseless carriage" could be made a success, he sold his plumbing plant for $100,000. He put all that money into a car now one of the best and most popular in the world, and certain to perpetuate his name. But he was ruined.

W. C. Durant bought the car from him and formed General Motors. He, in turn, lost his General Motors Company to the Du Ponts and others. That company since then has made millionaires inside and outside of the company by dozens. Such is the fate of the pioneer in ideas.

However, the world gets the benefit of their work, and whether they die rich or poor doesn't matter much, once they are dead.

Not a happy day in Wall Street yesterday. Call money went to 12 per cent, the "big fellows" were afraid the Federal Reserve might apply more severe pressure and prices suffered.

HUNT MORE OPIUM IN N. E. WOOL

The $200,000 worth of opium seized in Thompsonville, Ct., is only a small fraction of a huge shipment of narcotics slipped into the United States, in the belief today of C. O. Bradshaw, federal narcotic agent in charge of the New England district.

According to Bradshaw, who mailed a report of the seizure to Washington today, the bale of wool in which the opium was found when the bale was opened at the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Co. is probably one that went astray.

The federal agent is of opinion that many other bales in which opium was concealed arrived at their illicit destinations safely.

HAWLEY IS THROUGH AS COACH

By BILL GRIMES

Business pressure has forced Jesse B. Hawley to resign as head coach of the Dartmouth football and Jackson Cannell of Everett will again take over the reins and direct the destinies of the gridiron game at Hanover.

Hawley came to Hanover four years ago and his reign, until last fall, was the most successful in the history of football at Dartmouth. The Hawley system, one of the most complex in the country, became known as the "Dartmouth system," and Hawley let football, going through an undefeated season, during which they conquered Harvard, Princeton and Yale, and emerged champions.

Last season was one of the worst Dartmouth has had for years, and in an effort to stop the criticism Hawley had announced that he would not accept a contract which put him in the position of being subject to criticism. It was at about this time that Jackson Cannell, who succeeds Hawley, is taking his second ring at the head coach berth at Dartmouth. Immediately after Cannell Please Turn to Page 14, Column 2.

RIVAL FORCES IN CLASH CLOSE TO BORDER; VERA CRUZ IS RECAPTURED

El Paso, Tex., March 7—A battle for possession of Juarez, most important city on the Mexican-American border, was reported under way today 25 miles south of the border.

The fighting is reported to have broken out between the small Juarez federal garrison, commanded by General Manuel Limon, and the rebels, commanded by General Caraveo, near the town of Samalayuca.

Limon commanded a force estimated not to exceed 600 men, while the strength of the insurgents was unknown, but was variously estimated at 3,000 to 3,000.

The 7th U. S. cavalry and artillery units at Fort Bliss were under orders for immediate movement if necessary, to the Rio Grande, should fighting occur in Juarez proper.

There was an unconfirmed report here that Mayor Gallo, of Juarez, seized as a rebel leader, has been executed by a firing squad.

Following is a summary of the Mexican situation:

1—Complete breakdown of the revolutionary movement in Vera Cruz and other parts of southern Mexico was reported today, while the rebels in the north continued their drive toward Juarez.

2—Jesus Aguirre, commander of the rebel forces in Vera Cruz was believed to have taken flight by sea after a ter-

'ROTHSTEIN AVENGED' IN MIAMI HOTEL KILLING?

Miami, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The man killed in a mysterious card game shooting affray at the Miami-Biltmore Hotel, Coral Gables, here, was identified today as Tom Walsh, a former associate of Arnold Rothstein, New York gambler. Police believe his slayer followed him here from New York.

Identification was revealed by Arthur L. Clark, a participant in the game, who was wounded. Under police guard at a hospital, he said a man unknown to him suddenly entered the Walsh suite announced while several brige games were in progress and opened fire without warning.

Clark, who said that Walsh came to Miami from New York three weeks ago and that hey had lived together at the hotel, told police:

"You can say for me that I didn't shoot Arnold Rothstein."

The authorities, however, announced they intended to continue to question Clark and three other men held in connection with the shooting, concerning the possibility that the slayer of Walsh was linked with that of Rothstein, for whom he acted as bodyguard.

Clark, who gave his address as New York city, denied an argument over cards led to the shooting. He said he believed Walsh's slayer came to the hotel with the inten-

The schooliship, which sailed from Boston, July 12, with 119 pupils aboard, was deserted by most of the pupils at different European ports so that only 21 remained when she reached Hamburg.

The Albatross was backed by the American Nautical School, Inc., of Boston. Proceeds of the sale will be used to satisfy wage claims.

The rescued men came in on their own vessel towed by the Acushnet. The cutter went to the rescue after receiving a wireless from the Fabia, a steam trawler, to which the Famiglia, which has no radio, had signaled an appeal for aid.

The dragger was taking water, the food was low and strong gales were blowing when the Acushnet hove in sight. The crank shaft was broken, the vessel had drifted for more than ten hours and the crew were all but resigned to death.

rific battle yesterday which ended when the consular corps secured an armistice to avoid further bloodshed.

3—The important strategic railway center of Monterey also was lost to the rebels, Gen. Escobar evacuating the city after a severe defeat by 10,000 federal troops.

4—Gen. Escobar later was driven out of Saltillo and today was retreating to Torreon along the western border of Coahuila.

5—Of the three chief revolutionary leaders, two have been definitely reported defeated, while the third, Gen. Borquez, in Sonora, was still consolidating his position and planning a southward movement against government forces in Sinaloa.

6—Cities which the government has recovered are Monterey, Cordova, Saltillo, Orizaba and Jalapa. Vera Cruz has virtually been recaptured, but still needs some consolidation of position.

7—An official government statement, predicting the speedy crushing of the revolt, said the rebel forces were in complete rout everywhere and were victims of "inconceivable panic."

8—Measures to confiscate the property of five of the leading revolutionaries were taken by the government, these including Gen. Aguirre, Manzo, Topete, Escobar and Cruz.

9—The naval forces which previously were reported on the side of the rebels at Vera Cruz are now stated to have steamed to sea and to have notified the government of their loyalty.

10—The first train north out of Mexico City since the outbreak of the revolution left for Laredo last night. Communication between Mexico City and the outside world was hampered by the cutting of the Western Union land wires between Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

11—Precautions were being taken at El Paso in the event of fighting in Juarez across the border. The Seventh U. S. Cavalry at Fort Bliss was under orders to move today with full field equipment. Early this afternoon federal and rebel forces were reported in contact about 25 miles outside the city limits.

Vera Cruz Is Recaptured by Government Troops

Mexico City, March 7—With two important government victories won within the past 24 hours—the recapture of Monterey and Vera Cruz—Mexican Federals today moved into battle with a strong rebel force advancing on Juarez, just across the U. S. border, opposite El Paso, Texas.

Simultaneously Americans were prepared in many parts of the revolt-torn land to leave the country.

Vera Cruz was retaken after it was evacuated by Gen. Jesus A. Aguirre, rebel leader, following a conference with foreign consuls in the city.

Before Vera Cruz was recaptured by the government forces serious street fighting between Aguirre's rebels and government revolutionaries had continued for hours. Reports indicate there was much bloodshed.

On quitting Vera Cruz Gen. Aguirre is believed to have fled to sea.

With a battle for possession of Juarez opened today, U. S. army officers from Ft. Bliss, on the American side of the border, watched the situation closely.

They indicated that American troops would cross the border and enter Juarez should fighting develop there in such a way as to endanger the lives of Americans in El Paso.

It was from Juarez that American troops drove out Francisco Villa in 1916 after stray bullets had killed several residents of the American city across the river.

Gen. H. Ramos, who resigned as assistant Secretary of War to assume command of the troops in Juarez, today said he would defend the town unless overwhelmingly outnumbered, in which case he will withdraw his troops and retreat.

The Federal force in Juarez is small. The advancing rebel army led by General Marcelo Caraveo.

Machine guns today had been mounted around barricades at the Juarez garrison and at the principal street intersections. Reinforcements were reported to be on the way, but it was doubtful whether they would arrive in time. Snipers were posted on Juarez buildings in readiness for an invasion of the city.

Following reports that the provolutionary movement was gaining headway in Juarez, the Federals last night established military rule, took over the customs house, disarmed police, and arrested Mayor Augustine Gallo and a number of other town officials.

Priests Declare Revolt Is a "Fight to Death"

The Government is vigorously following up its latest victory.

Federal forces under Gen. Andreu Almazan and Gen. Cadillo today are pursuing Gen. Jose Gonzalo's forces, which were driven from Monterey yesterday. Gen. Escobar's forces were later driven out of Saltillo and are now believed to be retreating to the northwest.

The rebels, according to late reports, continue strong in the State of Sonora. It is said they are concentrating strong air force at Ortiz.

The 500 troops at the revolutionary garrison in Nogales, Sonora, across the international line from here, were augmented during the night by 1,000 soldiers under Fausto Topete, governor of Sonora and one of the military leaders of the revolt. The troops were moved from Hermosillo, capital of the state.

Loyal Federal forces under Governor Abelardo Rodriguez completed pontoon bridges across the Colorado river between Baja, Cal., and Sonora last night.

Gen. Gasalum, a subordinate of Rodriguez, previously had occupied San Luis, Sonora, without resistance and was awaiting development of plans for a movement against the insurrectionists in Sonora.

More than 6000 Mayo and Yaqui Indians have joined the rebels in Sonora, news received here said. Most of these were reported moving southward against Federal forces in Sinaloa.

Officers in command in rebel forces in Naco and Agua Prieta, Sonora, appeared agitated over the reports that troops under General Escobar at Monterey had met reverses, and General Gonzalez, commanding the insurrectionists in Sonora, said he was officially advised that General Escobar had merely "withdrawn" his men to a stronger position.

Reports that a revolutionary cavalry detachment was attempting to invade Baja, California by way of San Luis, Songa, caused officers of the Merchantile Bank of Mexicali, to move six truckloads of currency across the line to Calexico, Calif., last night.

Priest of the Roman Catholic church in Sonora today planned to hold the first masses since July 1926 in accordance with Governor Topete's proclamation of religious freedom several days ago, the churches were closed by the clergy because of what they regarded as unreasonable religious laws.

The Rev. Jose M. Fabios said he would assail the Calles administration in a sermon at Nogales, Sonora, and urged his congregation to pray for the success of the revolution.

Federals Pursue Rebel Forces Near Monterey

"It is a fight for life," the priest declared, "either the present movement must triumph or once more we must give up our liberty."

President Portes Gil's official announcement of the recapture of Monterey predicted in terms of confidence that the revolt soon would be crushed and the city of Vera Cruz retaken by Government forces. In this connection a report has gained wide circulation in Mexico City that the censorship soon would be removed.

Delegates of the National League of Farmers have voted to support the Government against the revolutionists. It was said members of the league throughout the nation were ready to enroll in a volunteer army.

The Government also has received notification of support from another important source in a decision by Mexico City merchants to fix the prices of food and necessities for the prevention of profiteering.

The government's official communique for the day described in detail Gen. Escobar's flight from Monterey and the defeat of another rebel leader at Coahuila. A further important victory was reported in the recapture of Cordova in the state of Vera Cruz.

The communique said Gen. Aguirre, the rebel leader in the Vera Cruz zone, has lost a large share of his support as a result of his defeat and that only two isolated military units of revolters now remain in the whole state, one at Perote and the other at Jalapa.

Rebel forces are reported to be in complete rout everywhere with several important cities once more in the hands of federal troops.

"The enemy is the victim of inconceivable panic," adds the statement.

The government has ordered a squadron of military aviators to fly over the forces of Gen. Escobar and drop handbills explaining to them that they are rebelling against the national government.

This action is in connection with charges made by officials here that Gen. Escobar had deceived his supporters by telling them they were on the side of the government.

The airplanes will also drop copies of Mexico City newspapers on the Escobar troops for the purpose of informing them of the situation in the capital.

Gen. Ortiz, leader of the loyalist forces at Monterey, has wired ex-President Calles that Gen. Escobar confiscated government funds before evacuating the city, but that his flight had been so precipitous that a million rounds of ammunition, five machine guns and several hundred thousand dollars in cash were forgotten.

Mexican Envoy Sees Early End to Revolt

Washington, March 7 (INS)—An early end to the Mexican revolution was predicted here today by Manuel Telles, Mexican ambassador, after a long distance telephone conversation with President Portes Gil.

President Gil informed the ambassador that the rebels now are in partial control of only three states, Sonora, Vera Cruz and Chihuahua.

The prompt measures taken by the Government to put down the rebellion, the loyalty of the army, and the moral effect of American support for the Portes Gil Government have been powerful factors in the decline of the revolutionists' fortunes.

Government to Seize Property of Rebels

Mexico City, March 7 (AP)—The Department of Justice issued processes today condemning the property of all leaders of the revolution. Those named specifically include Gen. Jesus Aguirre, Gen. Francisco Manzo, Gen. Fausto Topete, the governor of Sonora; Gen Escobar and Gen. Roberto Cruz, a former chief of police in Mexico City.

Ask Berlin Police to Aid in Slayer Hunt

Berlin, March 7 (INS)—The New York police department today asked the German police to aid in the hunt for James Baker, who is wanted in connection with the poisoning of Henry W. Gaw.

Henry W. Gow, a chemist's assistant at the Guggenheim laboratory in New York, was poisoned in December with cyanid which some one had placed in his coffee. Baker was a former employe of the laboratory but had been discharged.

Nogales, Sonora, Mex., March 7 (INS)—Two military airplanes were enroute from here today to reinforce the rebel air forces at Ortiz, according to Gen. Francisco Borquez, commander of the Northern Sonora revolutionary forces. Ortiz is the military capital of this state and the base from which the insurrectos will move against opposing Federals.

Mexico City, March 7 (AP)—A Government statement today said that Col. Ejeda, with a force of about 2,000 military police and agrarians, was operating in the neighborhood of Puente Nacional in the state of Vera Cruz, trying to cut the rebel lines of communications. Their purpose is to prevent the forces under Gen. Simon Aguirre from joining those under Gen. Jesus Aguirre and thus deal what they believe would be a decisive blow to the rebellion in this area.

Vera Cruz, March 7 (AP)—An official statement says that the naval forces which steamed out to sea at the beginning of the rebellion, have wireless messages assuring the Government of their loyalty.

$200,000 DRUG SEIZURE TRAIL LEADS TO HUB

the investigation that the wool bale was one of a shipment landed in News York and trans-shipped to Philadelphia, being distributed from there in small numbers throughout the country, many bales being sent into New England.

An effort will be made, according to Director Bradshaw, to trace every bale in the shipment.

The 50 to 60 pounds of opium seized at Thompsonville was stowed in pocket belts, similar to those used for cartridges. In addition there were larger individual packages of the narcotic.

It was in two qualities. The best was what is known as "Turkish Red," caked in round form, about the size of a Camembert cheese. The rest was in raw form and was "hunked off" and placed in the belt pockets.

DISCOVERED BY WORKER.

Discovery of the opium was made when a workman at the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Co. plant came upon a bale that, unlike the others, bore no shipping marks. He believed the absence of marks merely an error or omission, however, and opened the bale.

The drug wrappings bore Turkish characters and for that reason the federal agents believe the shipment originally from Constantinople.

Big Federal Probe of Drug Menace Planned

By KENNETH CLARK

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

Washington, March 7—An exhaustive survey of the narcotic menace in the United States will be conducted by President Hoover's national commission on law enforcement, it has just been learned.

The commission, expected to be appointed shortly, will investigate all phases of federal enforcement activities, with reference particularly to prohibition and narcotics.

President Hoover is endeavoring to obtain the most eminent authorities in the country to serve on the fact-finding commission. One will be an outstanding physician, who will be charged especially with the duty of inquiring into the abuses and evils arising under the present narcotic laws.

It is the purpose of the investigation to evolve recommendations to be submitted to Congress for remedial legislation to combat the unscrupulous illicit traffickers.

Fully cognizant of the perils of drug addiction and its consequent demoralizing and degrading influences, President Hoover, it was stated, believes that no more valuable service can be performed for the nation than to smash the gigantic rings engaged in ruthless unconscionable traffic in defiance of established law and order. He sees in this illicit trade an insidious influence which tends to undermine the economic and social fabric of America.

In his inaugural address, Hoover made it quite plain that the investigation would not be limited solely to prohibition, that he had in mind the drug peril and other evils, was shown in this statement.

"I propose to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation of the whole structure of our federal system of jurisprudence, to include the method of enforcement of the 18th Amendment and the causes of abuse under it. Its purposes will be to make such recommendations for reorganization of the administration of federal laws and court procedure as may be found desirable.

The commission's investigation of narcotics will mark the first time since 1919 that the federal government has conducted a general survey of the problem. In that year a special Treasury Department committee reported there were 1,000,000 addicts in the country.

Flags Half Staff For 'Town Toper'; 27 Years in Jail

New City, N. Y., March 7 (AP)—Flags on public buildings here were at half staff today to mourn the passing of Michael Whalen, the town toper, who spent 27 of his 56 years in jail.

Taken ill several days ago, his only request was that he be allowed to die in the jail which he called "home." But he was disinvited, as he passed away at the hospital.

County officials raised $1000 for his funeral and ordered that the courthouse be closed today. Each Christmas for many years Whalen was given a party by the Rockland county officials, who regarded him as a hero since some years ago he saved the jail from destruction by discovering a fire and arousing the keeper.

tion of killing Walsh and that he (Clark) was wounded accidentally. He was shot in the left chest and left arm.

The other three men held are Jimmy Farbo, Bert Griffith and W. L. Bowen.

Police said Clark refused to reveal the identity of the man who took him to the hospital after the shooting. Hospital authorities reported he was brought there by a man who hastened away when the wounded man had whispered to him, "Hurry over to Miami Beach to the hotel and clean out."

"Fatty" Walsh Suspected in the Murder of Rothstein

New York, March 7 (AP)—Police were informed today that the man, killed in a shooting affray at the Miami Biltmore Hotel, Coral Gables, was Thomas (Fatty) Walsh, former bodyguard of Arnold Rothstein.

Walsh was questioned after Rothstein was killed but was released when he said he had left the gambler's employ two months before because Rothstein was "too cheap." Today, however, police expressed belief the Walsh killing was an aftermath of the Rothstein shooting.

George McManus, another gambler, is still held without bail for trial on a charge of killing Rothstein.

$35,000 LOSS IN BRIGHTON FIRE

teen; Freda, six; Norma, eighteen, and Fedele, twenty.

Firemen trapped by the explosion were of engine companies 26, 34 and 51, and ladder companies 11 and 14.

The fire apparently started between the two-story one front building and a two-and-one-half story wooden addition in the rear.

As the men were battling it from the interior, the explosion came with terrific force, hurtling glass and debris in all directions.

District Chief Cornelius O'Brien sounded a second alarm and the third alarm was sent in by Chief Bennett.

A two-story wooden storehouse in the rear of the main building was saved only by desperate effort.

Valuable machinery in the main building was ruined.

MITCHELL SAYS: U. S. DRY LAW WILL BE ENFORCED

HAS FAITH HE WILL SUCCEED

Washington, March 7 (AP)—A dapper man with a youthful face, who would rather shoot wild life with a motion picture camera than a rifle, emphasized today that the national prohibition law will be enforced.

"President Hoover's inaugural address should be platform enough for the Department of Justice," William D. Mitchell, the new attorney-general said. "I have not had time to work out any scheme for handling the prohibition question."

If, as President Hoover wishes, the prohibition bureau is placed under the supervision of the Department of Justice, it will mean an immense increase in the work of the department.

"I think we have interesting work cut out for us," he said. "I have faith that we can improve conditions. I will have to work out the problem to see whether we will need more funds, and if the problem means an increase in work or personnel I will have to ask for more money.

"We will make no hasty moves."

Mr. Mitchell said he had given some thought to the work of the commission to be appointed by President Hoover to investigate the administration of the criminal law by the federal courts, and he believes it would result in improving conditions. This particularly applied, he said, to the congestion in the criminal court dockets.

Mrs. Willebrandt Is to Continue Dry Campaign

Washington, March 7 (INS)—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition affairs, will remain in that capacity, it was announced at her office today.

This will put Mrs. Willebrandt even more directly in a position to enforce the dry laws, since it is anticipated the prohibition bureau will be transferred from the treasury to the justice department.

FOR GOLD STAR MOTHERS

STAR IN FILM OF PARENTAL LOVE

All Gold Star Mothers in Greater Boston are invited to see "Mother Machree" at the Washington St. Olympia and Fenway Theaters this week as guests of the Boston Evening American. Free tickets can be obtained by the mothers at the State Department, American Legion. Above photo shows Belle Bennett and Philippe DeLacey in a scene from the film.

TREAT IN STORE FOR GOLD STAR MOTHERS

A treat is in store for Gold Star Mothers.

Beginning next Saturday, "Mother Machree," the heart-gripping story of mother love by Rida Johnson Young, will be presented by William Fox in the Washington St. Olympia and Fenway Theaters and the Boston Evening American, in co-operation with the theater managements, wishes every Gold Star Mother in Greater Boston to see this excellent motion picture, free of charge.

Tickets for any Gold Star Mother who wishes to avail herself of the opportunity will be waiting for her, beginning today, at the State Department, American Legion.

It would be unfair to reveal the story of "Mother Machree" to those who intend viewing the absorbing picture.

It is sufficient to say that the story is built around a young Irish mother who comes to America with her boy after the father is lost at sea, and who sacrifices herself and gives up the boy that he may be reared in luxury and educated as she could not educate him.

All that the Gold Star Mothers need do is visit the State Department, American Legion, get their tickets and go to the show. There is nothing further.

Remember—the picture opens Saturday at the Fenway Theater on Boylston st. and Massachusetts ave., and at the Washington St Olympia, just south of Boylston st.

HARVARD REPORTS BIG QUAKE

One of the most severe earthquakes recorded in recent years by the Harvard seismographical station was reported today.

The disturbance lasted for four hours and was of an intensity that, according to the Harvard experts, must have caused "extensive loss" if it occurred near a populated center.

The estimated location of the quake was 4370 miles northwest of Cambridge in the approximate position of the Aleutian islands off Alaska. It was not considered impossible that Alaskan or Canadian settlements might have been affected.

An earthquake of severe intensity was recorded on the seismograph at Peabody museum of Yale University last night, according to Fred Herpich, in charge of the instrument, who said today that the disturbance occurred about 3300 miles from this city.

The actual earth movement started at 8:54 p. m., reaching its maximum intensity at 9:10 p. m. The exact location of the earthquake was unknown, but the probable place was to the westward possibly centered in the Hawaiian islands.

An earthquake, recorded on the Cornell University seismograph last night at 8:45 o'clock and continuing until midnight was the most severe ever recorded there, Prof. H. Reis of the geology department said today. The shocks were some 4000 miles distant and undoubtedly caused heavy damage if the quake occurred in populated districts, he declared.

CONDEMNS SELECTION OF CHIEF

Brockton, March 7—Asserting that the appointment of Walter O. Crooker as chief of police of Holbrook was a step backward in proper enforcement of law and order, and against public interest, Dist. Atty. Winfield M. Wilbar today rebuked the Holbrook selectmen in a public statement.

"To appoint a man who was involved in a serious violation of the motor vehicle laws and had his right to operate an automobile revoked is a demonstration of gross disregard for the interest of the public," said Wilbar.

"Such an example of town politics only serves to hasten the time when the state will take over the policing of municipalities."

Crooker is 72 and was chief until a year ago when Edgar C. Hill replaced him. Hill arrested Crooker for driving while under the influence of liquor and secured a conviction in Quincy district court. When the results of the town election last Tuesday were announced Chief Hill resigned and the selectmen appointed Crooker.

Judge Morton allowed him a "reasonable period" to conduct important business while in the custody of the U. S. marshal before going to Atlanta.

CHAMBERLAIN IS HEARTILY FOR KELLOGG PACT

Geneva, Switzerland, March 7 (AP)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, in an interview with the Associated Press correspondent, today said he has always regarded the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war as one more barrier erected by international co-operation against war.

The British foreign secretary, discussing a recent private talk he had with British journalists, denied he had made any reflections against the Kellogg pact.

"If I had," he said, "it would have been in contradiction with every public utterance I have made since the pact was proposed to us.

"I have had an opportunity of reading President Hoover's inaugural address and though our thoughts were expressed in different language, I discover no great difference between what the President said and what I said to the press here."

CALL SENATOR AS WITNESS IN DICE CASE

Senator John Buckley of Charlestown was called today as a character witness for Edward P. Curran on one of the five defendants on trial in Suffolk Superior court for holding up a dice game in a Friend st., poolroom January 13.

The defendants, whom the government contends were aided in the holdup by Anthony Chiampa, later slain in Revere, are in addition to Curran, Angelo Polcari, Pasquale Vallarelli, Americo Tutella, and Carmino Ventula.

Under examination by ex-Senator James E. Brennan, Senator Buckley testified Curran bore a good reputation in Charlestown. Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle asked only one question. It was: "You're the senator from the district, aren't you?" "Yes," was the reply.

The next witness was John Gillis counter man in a Canal st., lunch cart where taxi drivers eat. He testified that on the night of January 12 Curran was in the lunch cart and had been drinking.

LANDSLIDE FATAL TO FORTY

London, March 7 (AP)—Details were being sought today of a disaster in the Madeira Islands. Messages from Funchal said 100 persons had lost their lives in a great landslide.

A Reuter message from Funchal said that five persons were killed and 100 made homeless, but trustworthy details were not obtainable.

"Eleven houses were swept into the sea, says the Lisbon newspaper Seculo.

The landslide occurred at the village of Varzem, in St. Vincent parish, one of the most noted beauty spots in Madeira.

Help has been asked from Funchal, capital of the island, but it is uncertain whether relief expeditions have been able to reach the scene of the disaster in the face of flooded roads and landslides elsewhere.

Varzem, inhabited chiefly by farmers and fishermen, is perched on the mountainside above the Inferno river, which has recently been flooded by heavy rains. Part of the village collapsed into the river, falling 50 feet into the swirling waters.

Houses and their inmates were swept out into the Atlantic Ocean. The mass of earth carried by the landslide momentarily dammed up the river, but the waters, piling up behind the barrier, suddenly broke through, carrying masses of rocks and earth, together with houses and persons, seaward.

Survivors were panic-stricken by the suddenness of the catastrophe and the agonized cries of the victims who were literally swept out of their homes into the ocean.

Volcano in Iceland Reported in Eruption

Copenhagen, March 7 (AP)—The Icelandic legation received reports today of an eruption of the Volcano Kverkfjoll, 60 miles from the southeastern coast of Iceland.

SEGRAVE'S AUTO TO BE 'BULLET'

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The most technical plans in the history of the world speed tests here have been completed for the events which will start as soon as the beach will permit.

Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, who carries the hopes of Great Britain in his Golden Arrow machine, probably has the most intricate task of the two entries in the classic this year. He will steer his machine in the tests by a sighting arrangement, similar to that used on a gun.

Far down the beach bull's-eye targets have been set up at which he will aim his car.

The huge 36-cylindered Tripley, present holder of the world's title, also was ready for the tests, although no one has been named driver by its owner, J. M. White of Philadelphia.

The American Automobile Association has erected timing devices which can judge the speed to a fractional degree. A new timing device will also be set up by the city.

SHATTUCK IS IN ADAMS' POST

Rep. Henry Lee Shattuck, class of 1901, was today officially named treasurer of Harvard by the overseers. He succeeds Charles Francis Adams, who resigned to become Secretary of the Navy under President Hoover.

In announcing the selection of Shattuck, the overseers also announced acceptance of Adams' resignation, commenting that, "as treasurer, he was one of the seven longest in term of office since the founding of the corporation in 1650." He served 30 years.

Shattuck is chairman of the House ways and means committee and is a member of the law firm of Ropes, Gray, Boyden and Perkins.

LAUDS SKIN OF HUB WOMEN

"The women of Boston are fortunate, indeed, for they are blessed with skin as lovely in texture as the silky petals of a rose—and as delicate! For this reason it must be carefully protected lest it lose its bloom through ill-care—or—your capricious Boston climate!" So says the famous beauty expert, Mlle. Manka Rubenstein, sister of Mme. Helena Rubenstein, who over 30 years ago originated the toilet preparations which are now known the world over.

Mlle. Rubenstein is drawing hosts of beauty seekers to Jordan Marsh Co. this week, where she is located in the toiletries section, and is giving her personal advice on cosmetics best suited to each individual.

"The signposts of age are the eyes and hands," continued Mlle. Rubenstein. "They should be given the greatest care. Eyebrow plucking lends an artificial appearance. Brows should be trained with a brush dipped in cream to give them fine, natural expression. A softening lotion for the hands is not enough. They should be exercised daily, to maintain their youthful flexibility."

On Friday afternoon, at 2:30, in Jordan's assembly hall, Mlle. Rubenstein will give an interesting lecture and demonstration.

Happiest Man Is Found! Ford Picks Edison

Fort Myers, Fla., March 7 (AP)—Thomas A. Edison, in Henry Ford's opinion, is the happiest man in the world. Mr. Ford expressed this belief at the end of a month's vacation at his winter estate, adjoining that of his old friend, as he started back to Dearborn, Mich.

On the occasion of his recent eighty-second birthday anniversary, however, the inventor hinted he believed nobody found complete happiness.

"Mr. Edison is rapidly solving the rubber problem," Ford said. "I have confidence he will succeed in finding a plant capable of producing the country's rubber supply.

"I have found Mr. Edison an inspiration. He is, I believe, the happiest man in the world. With his assistance, I have been working on reducing the number of operations needed in the manufacture of a part for our cars. Sixteen of these are used in each car, or about 140,000 a day."

MAN IS FROZEN AS HE STOOD

Toronto, Ont., March 7 (AP)—Indian trappers returning from the headwaters of the Attawapiskat river in Northern Ontario, told of finding the frozen body of a white man standing bolt upright on snowshoes.

The Indians said the body stood with one foot slightly advanced, as if about to take a step. It had been frozen solidly and the snowshoes were firmly anchored in the slush ice.

There was nothing on the clothing or among the effects in a prospector's pack to identify the body, the Indians said.

2 GIRLS IN THIS WEDDING

London, March 7 (AP)—The "wife" of "Capt. Leslie Barker" was surprised today to learn her "husband" was a woman.

"Capt. Barker," a boxing instructor, was arrested in connection with a bankruptcy proceeding and is being held in the woman's prison at Holloway.

"He" married Elfrida Haward, daughter of a druggist at Little Hampton, at Brighton in November, 1923 after a courtship of two years. The wedding was witnessed by the parents of the bride, who said their daughter at first was very happy, but later became miserable and left "him" two years ago.

The wife said she was unaware of the masquerade until she read the newspaper stories.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WIDE INTEREST SHOWN IN U. S. GIRL QUEST

Hundreds of letters seeking information about the great Quest of the Typical American Girl, today gave further evidence of the keen interest in this selective search to find that girl.

To these letters answer is given, that the girls of New England cannot propose themselves as candidates, but the nominations must be made by their friends, individually or in organizations.

Also, in reply to questions, it should be stated that the time is urgent; that the Quest ends at midnight March 31, and that it is wisdom to nominate at once.

Again, the photograph of the candidate is a necessary part of the nomination, as well as a biographical sketch giving her age, weight, height, stating whether she is blonde or brunette, and her social, business and athletic activities.

Thousands have shown interest all over the country, and the Quest is certain to be one of the outstanding events of the year.

SPLENDID AWARD

The great Quest for the Typical American Girl, being conducted throughout the country, has been taken to heart by the girls of the nation and by the girls' admirers.

The girl who is selected will receive the $5000 award made by Smart Set Magazine, and will be acclaimed the Typical American Girl, a wonderful honor in itself.

Send in to the Typical American Girl Editor of the Boston Evening American, a photograph and full description of the girl you wish to nominate for the honor of being selected in this region.

Not only may individual readers of the Boston Evening American make nominations for this highest honor that may be bestowed on an American girl in this decade, but social and other organizations may nominate candidates.

Also, high school societies, college sororities, business girls' organizations, women's clubs—all are invited to participate in this most interesting quest of the generation.

The search is a selective one and not a motion picture, popularity or beauty contest. It is an effort on the part of Smart Set Magazine and the 17 co-operating newspapers to find the girl best representing the Typical American Girl.

EXPENSES PAID

The girl who is chosen by the Boston Evening American as the Typical American Girl of this section will be sent to New York city under proper chaperonage and with all expenses paid as the guest of Smart Set Magazine.

There, with the 16 other regional winners, she will be the guest of the magazine for a week.

While the 17 regional winners are in New York the national committee selected by Smart Set Magazine will choose the Typical American Girl from among them and will award her $5000.

But that is not all. Guy Hoff, the famous artist, who does the covers for Smart Set Magazine, will paint the portrait of the winner for possible use on one of the summer covers of the magazine.

After he has finished that job he will paint the portraits of five of the remaining 16 girls.

Votes Higher Fees on Vermont Trucks

Montpelier, Vt., March 7 (AP)—A bill to increase registration fees on motor trucks was passed by the House and sent to the Senate. The rates would be advanced as follows: From 65 to 70 cents 100 pounds on trucks weighing 6000 to 9000 pounds; 75 to 80 cents on trucks 9000 to 13,000 pounds, and 85 to 90 cents on trucks over 13,000. The present 60-cent rate on trucks under 6000 pounds remains unchanged.

LONDON SOCIAL SEASON HAS A 'DEB' SHORTAGE

London, March 7 (INS)—So far as debutantes are concerned, London's 1929 social season seems to be destined to failure.

There is a shortage of debutantes! Society but happens to have fallen on one of those lean years when the crop of blue blooded flappers eligible for brilliant first entry into the drawing rooms of Mayfair is singularly small. Only one "coming out" has been announced thus far, and a check up of the social crop reveals that debutantes are few and far between.

The illness of King George has had something to do with this situation, as many society women have purposely delayed their receptions for their budding daughters until the King has completely recovered.

A number of young girls were permitted to make their debuts before their time because of the general brilliance of the season. This naturally aided in depleting the stock of 1929 eligibles.

Unless a large number of "dark horses" show up before many weeks have passed, this year will go down in social history as one of the dullest and least eventful since the dark days of the war.

Colquitt of Texas May Get U. S. Job

Washington, March 7 (INS)—A report was current today that President Hoover will name ex-Governor Oscar Branch Colquitt to the vacancy on the U. S. Board of Mediation. The appointment of Colquitt, it was said, would be a recognition of the "Hoover Democrats," who helped swing Texas into the Republican column.

'Unhappy Wife' Asked to Write Again

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

I AM afraid for many reasons to sign my name, but have no one to open my heart to. I am broken, crushed, despaired. I have lost my husband to a woman younger 15 years than I. He claims that I have a very bad and mean disposition. He was my whole world as he did not wish me to have any friends and now I have lost him. My husband thinks that he is very honorable and good and what has happened is my fault. Please be merciful and answer me in the paper. My husband wants me to get out of his way either by divorce or death and I can't divorce him so I have selected death as easier than life without him, but I beg of you tell me the truth, is all that my and only my fault?

MOST UNHAPPY WIFE, Cambridge.

Some of you folks write me, at times, that you envy me, that my life must be one long delight, answering interesting letters.

Very well—how would you like hard roads are to get me or death, and I selected death, so easy I beg of you tell me and only my fault?

to get a letter like this in your mail, find no name or address and know that you couldn't possibly get it to press, where this poor soul can see it, for some time? There's a situation that's enough to wring the heart.

You see, my poor, "Unhappy Wife," that I couldn't answer sooner, and now that I can, I won't, for where you are and what you are doing.

Won't you write and tell me and relieve the heartache that you gave me? You see, somebody really did care for the suffering that shows so clearly in your letter, and that somebody was me.

As for it being your fault—my dear, the trouble is that you are one of those gentle saints whose hearts most men break by a sort of savage instinct.

But as for letting him go—my dear—he's gone, in spirit, long ago, or no other woman would ever have elbowed her way into your place.

Write me, let me show you that there are really possibilities—hopes to future.

NOTE: Send sample of your handwriting to Miss Louise Rice for analysis. To cover clerical costs enclose 10 cents in silver or stamps. Also enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The individual analysis will be returned to you within a period of one or two weeks. Letters will not be published if sender so requests.

Announce New Diesel Engine for Aircraft

Dover, Del., March 7 (AP)—Announcement was made by the General Super Diesel Motors Corporation that it would produce in the near future an eight-cylinder, air-cooled, hot-air injection aeroplane engine, using oil for fuel instead of gasoline.

The announcement stated that the newly-patented radial machine would eliminate all valves now used in four-cycle machines, also spark plugs and carburetors, simplify production and insure greater reliability and safety in the air.

Privileges Denied to Clark Seniors

Worcester, March 7 (AP)—Clark University collegiate board reports it is found necessary to deny the petition of the senior class for half cuts for those students who rank in the upper half of the class. The petition was signed by the entire class and was submitted as a compromise measure for the refusal of the board to allow any senior privileges this year because of the abuse of them by the senior class of last year.

It is felt the numerous activities of the senior class means that more time should be given to extra curriculum activities, according to the petition.

HARRY LANGDON WILL MAKE TALKIES

Vaudeville is a training period for the movies.

At least, Harry Langdon, premier screen comedian, thinks so.

Harry, who is making a personal appearance at B. F. Keith's Memorial theater this week gave his version of the "talkies" to the Boston Evening American.

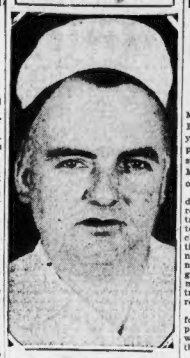
Harry Langdon

"I am going to make a 'talking picture' just as soon as my present vaudeville contract expires," he declared.

"Back in the old days I used my voice a great deal. I was in stock and in vaudeville for many years, you know. Then, after I went into movies, I almost forgot that an actor had to have a voice.

"In that respect I suppose I was like all motion picture actors. It never dawned on me that the spoken word would have its place on the screen. And when it did come—what a panic!

Reveals Secrets



AT LEE KITCHEN

Michael J. Kenney, pastry chef of the Parker House, who delighted Martha Lee's Kitchen class by his cooking lesson.

PARKER-HOUSE CHEF TEACHES MARTHA CLUB

Even the window sills in the Martha Lee Kitchen of the Boston Evening American were occupied yesterday afternoon as a vantage point from which to observe the splendid cookery lesson, given by Michael J. Kenney, pastry chef of the Parker House.

Old-fashioned angel cake of indescribably luscious texture, macaroons of toothsome chewiness and tarts, patties and turnovers of the tenderest ever puff pastry were included in Mr. Kenney's demonstration. In addition to this Mr. Kenney very generously gave his original formulas for pound cake and ginger bread patties, two more magnets that draw countless patrons to the Parker House dining rooms.

Mr. Kenney's recipes will be found on the magazine page of this paper next Saturday and no one will want to miss adding them to their scrap book of choicest dishes.

Folks are flocking from all over New England to these chef days in the Martha Lee Kitchen and we suggest an early arrival for the best seats.

TAX BURDENS WORKERS, SAYS REP. LOGAN

Among the many prominent professional men and women to approve the nationwide movement to bring about a downward revision of the federal tax on earned income, being supported by Hearst newspapers, is Representative Joseph A. Logan of Hyde Park.

Logan is a leading attorney and a member of the Massachusetts legislative committee on taxation. He believes there should be a radical reduction in the taxation on earned income in order that the burden may be lifted from the shoulders of physicians, lawyers, architects, journalists, theatrical people and other persons in the professions.

"I not only fully approve of the movement to make a radical revision of the federal income tax law with respect to earned income, but I also advocate a complete revision of the Massachusetts income tax law with respect to earned incomes in order that the wage earners of this State may be relieved of their present tax burdens. The present State income tax law is a mess. I think all fair minded citizens agree on that point.

MORE EXEMPTIONS

"As a member of the House committee on taxation, I favor increasing the exemption in the State income tax to $3000 on single men and $5000 on married men. Taxation should be placed where it belongs and it certainly does not belong on the shoulders of men and women earning small salaries. The millionaire should be willing to pay more.

"With respect to the federal income tax law, I believe it should be revised in such manner that the man and woman earning a salary should not be so heavily burdened. This can be done in two ways, by increasing the deduction now allowed. At the present time the wage earner, after computing his tax on net income is allowed a deduction of 25 per cent because of the fact that this income is earned. That percentage could be materially increased.

UNFAIR TO PARENTS

"Another way in which the matter could be corrected so that the great middle class of this country, such as lawyers, physicians, journalists, architects and theatrical people, might be relieved would be to increase the size of the exemption on children and also to extend the age to which such exemptions would be allowed.

"At the present time, the federal income tax law permits an exemption of $400 on a child until it is 18 years of age. What father can support a child for one year on that amount of money, except when the child is very young?

"With our high standard of living in the United States how far will $400 go in a year to support a girl or boy in high school? I'd like to know how it can be done. Think of the clothes a girl of 16 must have today to be on a par with her fellow students in school!

FOR GRADUATED SCALE

"Even if a child is well, its upkeep yearly will cost much more than $400, and we all know that if a child has a serious illness the entire allowance of the government may be spent in a few weeks in doctors' and hospital bills.

"I think a graduated scale should be put into effect. At 10 or 12 years of age the $400 exemption might well be doubled and when the child reaches college age it could be redoubled to $1600. Every father who is putting a boy or girl through college knows that much will be spent during a year to accomplish that purpose.

"It is my further opinion that if children are being educated, this exemption should continue until 21 years of age, as parents of this caliber should be encouraged in this laudable purpose by the Government, on the broad ground that these well educated young men and women are distinct assets to this great country of ours.

"The average husband and wife, struggling to put their children through good schools and colleges, feel that the removal of this exemption at 18 years of age is very unfair. It is not in tune with the American spirit of live and let live."

"By Joe! it's good to smoke Luckies."

Felix Count Luckner

Lucky Strikes? By Joe, yes. Let me tell you. I was cruising in my raider in the South Pacific. It had been damp, rainy weather and every bit of tobacco we had on the ship was mouldy and could not be smoked. We began to be desperate. The men were —what you call—grouchy. Along came an American ship. We captured her and after taking the captain, officers and crew aboard my raider and finding comfortable places for them to stay, I and my officers went over to the captured ship to see if there was anything aboard her that we wanted. We searched her. And what do you think? Under the cushions of a seat in the captain's cabin we found 500 packages of Lucky Strikes! I tore off the end of one and lit it and filled my lungs with it, and By Joe, I was a man again. We had enough for all the crew and we were all cheered up and we all became friends once more. By Joe, I was sorry to sink that American ship that had brought us those smokes. Lucky Strikes, they are wonderful, and my Countess, of course, wishes a fashionable, slender figure. She smokes Lucky Strikes when she is offered fattening sweets. And my life has always been an active one and I must be trim and fit. I love to feel what you Americans call 'peppy.' So no sweets for me. Give me a Lucky Strike instead. By Joe, it's good for us to smoke Luckies."

COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER

Germany's greatest war adventurer, who never killed an opponent. Count Felix von Luckner, the most romantic and mysterious figure on the side of the Central Powers in the World War.

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This confirms in no uncertain terms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

NORWAY CITES WM. NEWSOME

William Newsome, senior vice president of the United Fruit Company, today received official notification, through the vice consulate of Norway in this city that King Haakon VII had appointed him a Knight of the Order of Saint Olav, first class—the highest honor that can be conferred on one not a Norwegian born.

In the document accompanying the decoration is recited the facts that Mr. Newsome during many years "has rendered Norwegian shipping trade great services."

The decoration is an eight-pointed Maltese cross of white. Between the rays are golden crowned O's. The disk in the center of the Order is a blue, white and crimson enamel surmounted by a crowned golden lion bearing an ax. The crest is a pearl-studded kingly crown, studded with sapphires and rubies. The distinguishing ribbon of the Order is a blue and white striping, bordering a red field.

The Order is bestowed on those who have won distinction by services to king, country, art and science. According to the statutes of the Order of Saint Olav, decorations must be returned to the office of the Order of Oslo on the death of the holder. In the event of Mr. Newsome visiting Norway he would be received with almost royal honors.

This is the second knightly decoration conferred upon Mr. Newsome. A year ago the Pope conferred the Order of Saint Gregory upon him.

HONORED BY KING

William Newsome, senior vice-president of the United Fruit Company, has been made Knight of the Order of St. Olav by King Haakon for services to Norway.

U. S. Wants Orloff's Forgeries Cleared Up

Berlin, March 7 (AP)—The American embassy has been instructed by the State Department to interest itself officially in the Vladimir Orloff forgery case, an Borah is deeply concerned to have the matter cleared up.

The embassy informed the German Foreign Office accordingly and expressed hope the investigation would lead to clear proofs, not only to reveal present forgeries, but to prevent similar machinations in the future.

Sealing Fleet Off for the Ice Fields

St. John's N. F., March 7 (AP)—The Newfoundland sealing fleet sailed for the ice fields today on its annual hunt. The crews cheered lustily as the fleet got under way and their cheers were answered by large crowds. Favored by a strong west wind, the fleet expected to reach the northern ice pack by tomorrow, after which the quest of the seal herds will begin.

The daily movements and catches of the sealing steamers will be reported by radio.

Checker Taxi

Announces Arrival of New Cars

Following our policy of offering patrons only the very best that can be procured, we have spent some little time in investigating fully the merits of the different cabs at present on the market.

As a result, orders have been placed for a large fleet of most luxurious and wonderfully appointed cars, to replace the cabs at present in commission. A considerable number of these cars are now on the streets and others will follow just as fast as the factory can supply.

Inspect these cars. Convince yourself of their extreme comfort and riding qualities. You could not imagine anything more beautiful or luxurious even in a high priced private car.

To a greater degree than ever we can now claim that preference which the Boston public have so generously accorded at all times to Checker Taxi.

Checker drivers are fully uniformed, of known and proved character and ability. They are an active part of a dependable organization, working with earnest endeavor under the protection of the best possible system of Financial and Moral Responsibility.

The railroads which bring the people to Boston are eager, and anxious, to safeguard their patrons, and for that reason all of them have chosen Checker Taxi to meet all incoming trains at all depots. What better guarantee can be had of Checker service—faithful, safe and wholly reliable.

For the same reason, Checker Taxi has the endorsement of a great majority of the high class hotels, which feel that they are responsible for the kind of taxicab service they give to their guests, and so choose the one best qualified to give them the required exceptional results.

This is a stamp of approval of extraordinary distinction. It is only natural and logical that Checker Taxi should do everything possible to deserve such signal recognition.

SAYS BUSINESS PACE TO LAST FOR YEAR

An almost sensational demand for air conditioning and ventilating equipment for industrial and public buildings is bringing a record first quarter to the large fan and ventilating manufacturers, and carries with it further definite indications of a continuation of unusual industrial and business prosperity generally, at least until July, according to C. A. Booth of Buffalo, vice-president of the National Association of Fan Manufacturers, and an outstanding spok man of the industry.

Heavy buying of the mechanical facilities for controlling air conditions is ascribed by Mr. Booth as due to broader efforts to protect the worker in industry and to reduce production costs in many manufacturing processes.

"By the same token, manufacturing plants, builders of new structures and railroads would not be investing heavily in mechanical ventilation and other improvement if the outlook did not warrant confidence or optimism," Mr. Booth said. "Year after year there have been able to accurately forecast the business trend in important lines by our sales records and a careful checking of this fan or blower index gives us every reason for believing that business generally this year will run at least 10 per cent ahead of 1928."

The fan association's survey of the business situation indicates that there will be considerably more activity in the building of factory plants this year, but that activity in other building lines may decline somewhat. A revival of real estate buying with rising values, which is being predicted by some, is not anticipated.

"The automobile companies may reach a temporary peak in output this year," Mr. Booth said. "The steel companies, tire manufacturers, copper producers and railroads should be very prosperous this year with business at a new high volume. Prosperity of the oil and coal companies depends much on curtailment of crude oil output, and the consumption of gasoline in 1929 is certain to be record-breaking the outlook for the textile industry is not entirely bright. Because of the excess producing capacity, there is the continued danger of over-production.

"The foreign situation in very encouraging. American engineers and many products should establish a new figure this year. Business has nothing to fear from the merchant strain recently pointed out by the Federal Reserve Board. Money will be more plentiful and cheaper by late spring."

The fan association's survey of the business situation included reports from such widely distributed and important industrial leaders in the field as: The American Blower Corporation of Detroit; Buffalo Forge Company of Buffalo; the Sturtevant Company of Boston; Bayley Blower Company of Milwaukee; and three in Chicago, the Electric Ventilating Company, Garden City Fan Company and the New York Blower Company.

BANK DIVIDEND IS PROPOSED

The board of directors of the Banca Commerciale Italiana, Milan, Italy, will propose to the annual meeting of the stockholders to be held in Milan on March 27, 1929, a regular dividend of 65 lire per share, corresponding to 13 per cent of the par value. The board of directors of the said bank will also propose to the stockholders to add to the surplus the 20,000,000 lire that after such distribution of earnings, the total amount of the surplus of the bank will reach the sum of Lit. 560,000,000.

At the meeting of the stockholders of the Banca Commerciale, an investment company formed in New York by the Banca Commerciale Italiana of Milan, Italy, whose values are declared, payable to stockholders on record as of March 15.

Steel Production Nearly Balanced

Production and incoming business of United States Steel Corp. in February about offset each other, so little change is expected in unfilled orders as of Feb. 28, last, to be published Saturday, unless there were adjustments at end of month. Thus far it has been impossible to learn what adjustments may be made, if any.

In February of last year new orders also about equalled output, but considerable business was added to the books by a rush of buying on the last day and by adjustments made at the end of the period, so that an increase of 422,242 tons was reported. This could be repeated again this year.

RAIL MERGERS CRASH INTO OBSTACLES

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

While the speculative element in the stock market rushes eagerly to buy carriers on the strength of every new merger proposal, it is increasingly evident that grouping plans are bound to crash into many obstacles. We pointed out in this column recently that nearly two decades have passed since the first rail merger plan was formulated, and that so far no important merger has been effected. Rail merger plans have been favored in the abstract, but there seems to be little doing when it comes to anything concrete.

Sections of Wall and State Streets greeted with delight the merger proposal of the Baltimore & Ohio a little while ago. Now President Fairfax Harrison of the Southern Railway System says: "The proposal of the Baltimore & Ohio to take over the Monon is as fantastic as it is cool. That property was acquired 27 years ago by Southern from Louisville & Nashville for joint account in order to assure to the South competitive access to the raw materials into the markets of the Middle West and it has since been developed to that end until today it is a first-class railroad serving important functions as a part of a north and south system of transportation in competition with the east and west trunk lines."

Henry I. Harriman has been elected chairman of the board of the New England Power Co., following the resignation as president, Samuel C. Moore succeeds him as president. New England Power Co. is one of the larger operating units of the New England Power Association. Several months ago Mr. Harriman resigned as president of the New England Power Association and was succeeded by President Frank D. Comerford.

President T. D. Stone of the Stone Industrial Equipment Co. tells me: "Your proposal, in paragraph regarding noise as a reducer of efficiency in business plants, and your surprise that Washington had no data on the subject, I might mention that the Bureau of Standards have gathered much data on this subject, mainly along scientific and academical lines.

"The University of Illinois has made a considerable study of the efficiency of various materials for the purpose of acoustical correction. The Bell Laboratories of the Telephone Co.; the Dictaphone Co.; the Victor Talking Machine Co. have all done more or less work along research lines, in connection with their apparatus.

"The real practical work has been done by such companies as the Stone Industrial Equipment, the Johns-Manville Co., and the Celotex Co., who have installed sound insulation, anti-vibration, and acoustical correction treatments for all kinds and types of buildings.

"The science of sound is largely an unexplored territory. If you will look over some of the college text books you will find little written relating to it. A few chapters on Periodic Motion, interference, pitch, reflection, vibration, and other elementary matters, sandwiched in between heat and light, and the mechanics and properties of matter, all grouped under general physics.

"From a practical standpoint much can be accomplished by proper sound deadening and acoustical correction, for offices, banks, churches, gymnasiums, auditoriums, and such places where excessive reverberations destroy audition and lessen efficiency."

William G. Furlong, former vice-president and general manager of the Mountain Gas Company of Albany, has become associated with the firm of F. S. Moseley & Co., its Albany branch. The company is opening new offices in the New York State Bank Building and will be the first brokerage firm in Albany to use the direct type-writer-telephone system connecting with its New York and Boston offices.

A new Massachusetts investment trust, the Counselors Investment Trust, has just been formed. The trustees are Hugh Bancroft, John Richardson, A. Vere Shaw and Arthur W. Smith. Initial capitalization consists of 50,000, no par, shares all of one class. The trust will be of the management type, the trustees having broad discretionary authority for the selection of investments. It is anticipated that the trustees will invest principally in common stocks with a view of principal as their chief objective. The trustees have subscribed to more than 6000 shares on account to net the Trust the same price per share as the shares to be sold to the public. It is understood that public offering of the stock of this trust will be made within the next few days.

The board of directors for Fred T. Ley & Co., Inc., which was organized in Delaware in February, is announced. The nine directors are: Fred T. Ley, Harold A. Ley and Lee L. Ley; Nicholas Roberti and John L. Laun of S. W. Straus & Co., Inc.; Robert E. McConnell and Edgar Ricard of Foster McConnell & Co.; C. H. Tenney, Massachusetts public utilities executive, and M. Chuckrow of the Ley organization.

Charles W. Stiger, president of Stromberg Carburetor Co. of America, Inc., such organization, has disposed of his interest and retired from active business. His resignation as president and director and resignations of his associates, Charles A. Brown and W. W. Mountain, have been accepted. William L. O'Neill, formerly vice-president, has been elected president by the Bryan electoral board. Vincent Bendix, C. M. Keys and Richard F. Hoyt have been elected directors.

Directors of North Butte Mining Co. returning here after board meeting at Butte, stated actual mining of copper ore will be under way in a few days. Properties are being cleaned up preparatory to getting quantity production started. Encouraged by present high price of copper, the company, under management of President Gow, is prepared to push operations energetically. Directors are optimistic regarding prospects. Only two-fifths of North Butte vein system has been worked down to 2800 feet. Company is said to have approximately 2500 feet on the strike of 13 veins, most of which have principal value.

T. R. Macaulay, president of Sun Life Assurance Co., told the banking and commerce committee of Canadian House of Commons that unless capital stock of the company was increased, control would pass into hands of United States interests. Bill which would raise capital stock from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 was being considered by committee. President Macaulay stated that Canadians are not prepared to pay present market price for stock around $2400 a share and that the return is only $25 a share. He also told the committee that 38 percent of the shareholders live in United States.

Condition of the Nation as Hoover Takes Control

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, March 7—President Hoover takes over the Chief Executiveship of a nation enjoying a high measure of prosperity, a nation blessed with an unusual measure of employment at high wages, a nation whose wealth is rapidly on the increase, a nation better fitted than ever before to meet world competition, a nation possessing the best transportation facilities in its history and the best in the world, a nation whose securities stand at record undisputed leadership, a nation at peace with all the world.

B. C. Forbes

That is Herbert Hoover's heritage as he takes over the Presidency.

What lies ahead?

Most infrequently a change in occupancy of the White House has unsettled the country. America's capitalists, financiers, industrialists and leading men of affairs contemplate the advent of the new regime with profound faith and confidence. They analyze Hoover as possessing masterly understanding of economics, and of the vital part played by economics in the well-being of the nation. More, they look to him for aggressive, constructive, brilliant guidance in raising general prosperity to still greater heights. Workers likewise regard Mr. Hoover with faith and trust.

This national mental attitude contains immeasurable encouragement. It powerfully contributes to peace now. Widespread distrust of the new administration would have in itself chilled or damped prosperity.

Conditions are not, of course, universally healthy as Mr. Hoover takes over the reins. They never are in this vast expanding continent embracing so diversified climate, natural resources, crops, industries, etc.

For example, President Hoover cannot and does not view the state of the farm as essential of all our industries, agriculture, with entire satisfaction. As early test of his statesmanship will be provided by the degree of success he achieves in contributing to making farming more profitable.

The President cannot and does not view complacently the abnormal conditions existing in the money market, another vital factor in our national health. Although more of a business man than a banker, and although by no means an experienced stock market operator, he can be counted upon to use his influence to bring about more normal conditions in the money market and in stock speculation.

President Hoover cannot and does not look with equanimity upon the lack of uniformity in employment, which has so frequently been experienced at different seasons and in different years. This problem lies near his heart, and wage-earners can count upon his exercising all the weight of his authority and influence to bring about greater co-ordination by industry, supplemented by governmental co-operation, to insure steadier employment.

President Hoover cannot and does not feel satisfied with the uncertainty under which managers of our great railway systems are laboring in the matter of the regulating authorities' attitude toward the large-scale consolidations endorsed by Congress nine years ago.

But, on the whole, President Hoover takes up the duty under happier auspices than did any of his predecessors. Outside of the stock market there is no alarming inflation.

The average level of commodity prices is sound. Inventories are light, rather than heavy. Wage-earners command unprecedented purchasing power. Grave labor troubles do not afflict the country. Our foreign trade is unusually healthy and vigorous. Tariff complications with other nations probably can be avoided. Public sentiment toward modern big business is no longer hostile and destructive, and co-operation between employed and employers never before was so widespread. Every available science is being harnessed in industrial research on a scale never before known. Our industrialists are energetically promulgating and spreading constructive, American enterprise all over the world.

The ongoings in Wall Street are calculated to give the average Public cause for most serious misgivings. The first worries of his administration may conceivably germinate there.

WITHDRAWAL OF FUNDS BY BANKS SEEN

New York, March 7 (AP)—The present stringency in money rates which sent call loans to 12 per cent yesterday, is regarded in Wall Street as evidences that the Federal Reserve authorities are getting results in their efforts to stem the absorption of credit in speculative trading.

Withdrawal of funds from the stock market by out-of-town banks as result of pressure by the Federal Reserve is believed to have been the chief cause for the tightness of money the last two days.

Adams Express, National Gas Corporation, subsidiary of ities Service Company, has acquired control of the Little Rock Gas & Fuel Company, operating the natural gas distribution system of the Arkansas city.

Activity in less than the week's outstanding development in nonferrous metals, says Engineering and Mining Journal. Possibility of a disturbance in the flow of Mexican lead into the United States caused buying interest. With domestic consumption at a higher rate, the price was advanced to 7¼ cents a pound.

Still higher prices for lead and zinc were predicted by Dwight W. Emmens, Canadian mining engineer, who said big lead and zinc producers have formed a cartel similar to that organized by copper producers.

Boston & Maine railroad has ordered five super-power locomotives to cost about $100,000 each from the Lima Locomotive Works, Lima, O.

Plans are being drawn in London for a company to dominate the world market for cocoa, palm oil and other West African products through consolidation of the Niger Company and the African & Eastern Trading Company, Wall Street hears.

Brockton Awards Loan for $500,000

Brockton, Mass., awarded $500,000 loan dated March 7 and payable Nov. 15 to Shawmut Corporation at 3.39 per cent.

Other bidders were Brockton National Bank, 3.41 per cent; Plymouth County Trust Co., 3.41 per cent; Old Colony Home National Bank, Brockton, 3.42 per cent.

UNION Carbide & Carbon Corp. earned $11.15 a share in 1928, against $9.32 a share in 1927.

Subsidiaries Are Sometimes Used to Milk Main Company

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, March 7—The new owners of American business—the vast army of small stockholders—are protected by the law against activities on the part of unscrupulous officers who seek to milk the properties for their own personal gain.

Insiders have not always recognized these legal restraints, nor have they always been inhibited by them. A new vogue has grown up of starting allied corporations or trading companies or bond affiliates through the use of the good will of banks and other enterprises. The new companies are designed to carry on cognate activities for which the charters of the major companies do not provide. If the stock of security companies allied to banks is apportioned rateably among all the shareholders of the bank this expansion is considered legitimate. If, on the other hand, officers and their friends take blocks of stock in the subsidiary irrespective of their holdings in the major company, this practice appears to be counter to fundamental corporation law.

"Corporate opportunity, whether within or without the scope of the corporate charter, may be exploited by it officers or persons acting for them only in the equal interests of the corporation itself, or in the rateable interest of all the stockholders," A. A. Berle, attorney and member of the faculty of the Columbia Law School, contends, in the Columbia Law Review. Incidentally, this principle of law is timely, in the light of the Stewart-Rockefeller dispute in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. Col. Robert W. Stewart, in buying oil for his company, participated in one-fourth of the profits of an intermediate company. After building the profits for a number of years in the form of Liberty bonds in his vault, he finally turned them over to the company. This transaction evidently aroused the ire of the Rockefeller interests.

In laying down the law concerning affiliated corporations, many of which have been launched in recent months, Mr. Berle, referring to an officer of a major corporation, adds: "Where he can only contribute his own time and services, which already belong in equity to the major corporation, the situation is quite otherwise. If he demands or secures compensation in the form of stock contribution, he is merely taking a portion of the good will of the major corporation, transferring it into private and tangible form, viz., stock of the subsidiary, and selling it for himself. This amounts, in substance, to a fraud on the corporation which already has engaged his loyalty as his merely inserted himself between the old corporation and its own good will; and has converted that good will through the medium of stock in the new corporation into a personal profit for his own benefit."

Referring specifically to a modern and subtle technique for milking companies by unscrupulous executives, Mr. Berle points out: "Where an officer in the major corporation has acquired or personally holds, by reason of his position, or as an organizer or promoter, stock in the subsidiary, and then exchanges this stock for stock in the parent corporation, he has merely completed the transaction by reselling the tangible evidence of the good will of the major corporation back to the corporation which originally owned it. And the fact that the profit is obtained by the form of stock of the major corporation can make no difference in the transaction. The effect of the combined series of activities has been to dilute the stock of the major corporation, making every share theretofore outstanding less valuable than it was before. Prior to the intervention of the promoters of the subsidiary (who are here assumed to be the officers of the major corporation) every share of stock of the old corporation was enhanced in value by the full measure of good will, business opportunity and general standing and financial resource held by that concern.

"After the organization of the subsidiary, so much of the good will, business opportunity, and so much of the new profit as is retained by the new corporation, has been taken from the field of operation of the original corporation and the value of its stock has been by so much diminished. Upon re-exchange of the stock of the subsidiary or stock of the major corporation to the extent that the stock of the subsidiary was not rateably distributed among shareholders of the major corporations or to the extent that they were not afforded opportunity to acquire it) the value of the stock and the opportunity thus taken has been retransmitted in the stock of the major corporation and it is there lodged in the hands of persons who have exploited the allied corporation for their own benefit."

The principal New York banks and bankers identified with security subsidiaries, protect the interests of minority stockholders of the subsidiaries by affording shares of the subsidiary to those of the principal company.

TRAVEL-TOURS-HOTELS-RESORTS

FASTER TRAINS TO SEATTLE

If train schedules between the Pacific Northwest and Chicago can be shortened without excessive cost of impairing service to the intermediate territory, the Great Northern Railway will speed up its through trains, Ralph Budd, president, indicated today, in a telegram to John H. Kenney, local passenger agent.

Whether it will prove practicable to do this and thus place the Pacific Northwest on an equality with California, which is farther in distance but approximately five hours shorter in train time, is now being determined, Budd stated. He indicated that the railways' study of the situation would be completed this week and that a statement would be forthcoming shortly.

The Great Northern Railway holds records for the rapid movement of silk trains across the continent, and for more than 20 years has operated the Government's fast mail train between St. Paul and Seattle on the fastest schedule of any long distance train in the world.

Northwest communities contend that the disparity between its through train schedules and the five-hour shorter schedules of the two railroads from California tends to retard the development of the Northwest.

Two C. P. R. Cruises to Mediterranean

L. R. Hart, general agent in Boston for the Canadian Pacific Steamships, announces that the increasing popularity of the Mediterranean as a winter travel center has prompted his company to offer two cruises in this region for 1930, the Empress of Scotland, to sail from New York, January 3, 1930, and the Empress of France, from the same port February 13, 1930.

Several changes have been made in the itineraries of these vessels, and ports hitherto off the track of Canadian cruising steamers have been added. The Empress of Scotland will call at Corfu, the largest of the Ionian Islands, and at Palma, Majorca, long the residence of Chopin, famous composer, in addition to Venice, Cannes and other customary Mediterranean ports. The Empress of France, 16 days later, will cover the identical itinerary followed by the Empress of Scotland, with the exception that she will call at Messina, Sicily, instead of Palermo, Sicily.

Skating Pageant Stirs Interest

Quebec, March 7—A radical change in the amount and the type of skating on Quebec rinks is noticeable since the ice pageant held here last month, according to Paul Wilson, figure skating professional of international repute at the Chateau Frontenac. "Children who have only straight-skated before have secured figure skates, and are now trying to imitate some of the stunts of the star performers at the carnival from Toronto," he said. "Boys are realizing that figure skating requires infinitely more nerve than hockey, and that learning the technique is one of the most fascinating pastimes."

DEMAND FOR FRANKLINS UP 81 P. C.

Nearly 300 Franklin automobile dealers and distributors of New England heard former Gov. Channing H. Cox, vice-president of the First National Bank, pay tribute to industries of this section and urge New England men to be loyal to their communities that the marked progress may continue.

This address was made at the annual luncheon of the Franklin Automobile Company in the Copley-Plaza and was attended by six executives from the factory.

Channing H. Cox

John E. Williams, vice-president, in charge of sales for the Franklin company, was toastmaster, and pointed out the record made by the company in the first two months of the current year, when orders for new Franklin cars totaled more than the entire business done in the first four months of 1928. He stated that the retail deliveries for the first two months were 81 per cent ahead of last year, and added that the volume of business thus far done indicates that the plans for doubling the 1929 output of air-cooled cars is justified.

H. H. Goodhart, advertising manager for Franklin, outlined the company's expanded advertising plans for 1929. He also paid a tribute to the important part that newspaper advertising is playing in the great advance, not only of the Franklin company but in the great volume of business being done by the industry as a whole.

Harry Mayo, sales manager for the Franklin Motor Car Company, 596 Commonwealth ave., and E. S. Marks, chief engineer for Franklin, also addressed the dealers.

DEALERS OF N. E. HONOR GRAHAM BROTHERS

Four hundred Graham-Paige Company dealers from all part of New England honored the three Graham brothers, heads of the corporation, at an enthusiastic meeting at the Statler Hotel.

Attention was called by R. A. Green, president of the Graham-Paige Company of New England, to the fact that the New England dealer organization had increased 300 per cent during the past year and that in the same period car sales had increased 400 per cent.

A "four-speed forward message" was delivered by Joseph B. Graham, company president, who said: "We take great pride in our organization and the spirit of loyalty that prevails at our great plant stands solidly behind our dealer organization everywhere.

"The best material money can buy is put into Graham-Paige automobiles and as a result we have a product that is honest, with every improvement and refinement that modern methods present."

Roy A. Grahnm, secretary-treasurer of the corporation, spoke about the factory organization and Robert C. Graham, vice-president, praised New England dealers, saying the company heads recognized the accomplishments of the New England company as among the outstanding features of the corporation's success.

The Abercrombie Mystery

BY CAROLYN WELLS

A Six Day Novel

Six Day Novel by a Famous Author

CHAPTER 4

"SO you have done that!" Lorna said, her voice tense with suppressed excitement.

"I am entirely right," she averred. "You and Detective Downing jumped to the conclusion that Mr. Abercrombie and I wanted his wife to die, and so, you argued, we must have brought it about."

"Can you suggest any other suspect?" he asked.

"That is not my business, that is yours."

"But," Ken began to feel he must defend himself, "the evidence is so very clear that you and Mr. Abercrombie—"

"Have I denied that? I admit—I am proud to admit that Hugh Abercrombie and I do care for one another. That we would have married long ago had it been possible."

At this point Dr. Garth entered and Ken turned to him:

"Can you help us any, doctor, regarding the poison taken by Mrs. Abercrombie?"

"Yes, I can do that," the doctor returned, speaking slowly. "I shall declare to you that I have made myself an accessory after the fact, but I am hoping you won't feel it necessary to spread that bit of information."

"You sound interesting, at any rate," Ken observed.

"Well, when I first visited Mrs. Abercrombie's bedroom after her death, I looked about for any traces of the poison. In the medicine cabinet on the bathroom wall, I found three items that did not seem to me suspicious, but which, I knew, would seem so to any layman. I therefore, carried them away with me.

"One bottle held laudanum, very old laudanum, more deadly than the fresh material. Another held powder, another corn remedy."

"Why did you take those things away, Dr. Garth."

"I knew none of the three killed Mrs. Abercrombie, but I knew some blundering investigator would think it did, and would—"

"Would trace it back to you."

"Well, yes, that pretty much covers the ground."

"What were the powders for?"

"Preparations of calomel. That, as you doubtless know, is a form of mercury, and has been known to produce fatal effects."

"Were you sure that Mrs. Abercrombie's death was not the result of those powders?"

"Absolutely. Because not one powder had been taken from the box. It was just as I gave it to her, its full contents intact. But it would lead to controversy, so I pocketed it."

"And the corn remedy?"

"That was a little box of tablets of bichloride of mercury. It is against the law to give these to patients, but some chiropodists have been known to do so. I felt certain that Mrs. Abercrombie had not used these, for the box seemed to be full, but I abstracted that also. I had no motive save protecting the good name of the lady herself and her household. The murderer, if it was murder, gave her the dose that day in the tea house. Therefore those poisons in the medicine cabinet would only clog up the case, and lead to unjust suspicions."

"It was a high-handed piece of business, Dr. Garth."

"It was, Mr. Carlisle. You tell the authorities, if you choose. I did it from the best of motives, but if I am arraigned for it, I will confess freely."

"I shall reserve decision for the present, doctor," said Ken, leaving.

At dinner he sat with Percy Van Antwerp.

Their talk turned on possible suspects, but Van Antwerp ridiculed the idea that Hugh could be guilty or that Lorna, or Troy Loring had anything to do with the crime.

It was true that Loring was left a large legacy by Eileen but that was no motive for murder.

In his opinion Miss Mercer was equally free from motive and the same applied to the servants.

A little later, quite by chance Ken met Troy Loring.

The two fell into step and Ken deciding on quick action, said, a little abruptly, "Were you here, Loring, the day of the garden party?"

"No, I wasn't. I planned to come, and then at the last minute I found I couldn't make it. But I expected to get here that evening for dinner. But I couldn't even work that. A matter turned up that I had to see to. So I telephoned Eileen that I couldn't come till the next day."

"What time was that?"

"I don't know. About six o'clock I guess. A servant answered the telephone and he said he'd tell Mrs Abercrombie at once."

"What servant was it?"

"I don't know. One of the men Not Fatter, though. I know his voice. Maybe one of the extra waiters they had in for the tea

THE CURIOUS QUIZZER

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

THE QUESTION

Do you agree with the plan for erection of larger buildings in Boston even at the sacrifice of some historical sites?

CHARLES B. GLEASON, 242 Auburndale ave., Auburndale, salesman—I agree with this plan for erection of larger buildings because it would give Boston a chance to reconstruct its street plan. Visitors to Boston are forever complaining of the crooked and narrow streets and the difficulty of those unacquainted here of finding their way about. Boston's business section is too cramped and besides providing more space for new business, would give older concerns a chance to grow.

HERBERT WILLIAMS, 154 Market st., Brockton, clerk—If Boston is to grow more prosperous larger buildings must be built. As a city grows the volume of its business grows also and to be efficient this business should be concentrated in one area as much as possible. Our old buildings are not large enough to meet the demands for space and if the business section is to be kept compact they must be torn down, and larger ones built in their place.

* * *

ETHEL MacIVA, 145 Walnut st., Neponset, at home—Boston needs larger buildings without doubt, but must we sacrifice historical sites to build them? Why not start building on the outskirts of the city? It would be a great mistake to tear down the old landmarks for which Boston is so justly famous. The peculiar charm of such cities as Boston and Philadelphia lies in the richness of their historical associations and the atmosphere of bygone days which makes them so different from the majority of American cities.

What Would He Wear On Million a Year?

Atlantic City, N. J., March 7—A man must spend at least 5 per cent of his income on clothes in order to be well dressed enough for an expert.

HUB VIES FOR AIRCRAFT CENTER

SEEKS TO BE INDUSTRY LEADER

Boston is one of the leading competing cities for recognition as centers of aircraft production or operation, the Aircraft Yearbook for 1928, released today by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, declares.

Other cities named are New York, Wichita, Kan.; Bridgeport, Pittsburgh, Rochester, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Miami, Scranton, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Houston, Seattle, St. Louis and Milwaukee.

During 1928 approximately 3000 planes and 3000 aircraft motors were built in the United States with a total valuation above $75,000,000.

Of the totals, 3778 were commercial planes and 2687 of the motors were for commercial use.

The commercial aircraft production increased 40 per cent.

The year book reports only one disturbing feature of aircraft production in 1928, a sharp decline in the manufacture of military planes. Altogether 1219 airplanes were built by nine plants for the navy bureau of aeronautics and the army air corps unit. Four plants built 1413 military engines. Steadily diminishing interest in military orders was noted in the closing months of the year.

7 N. Y. Wives Slew Husbands Last Year

New York, March 7 (INS)—In New York city 12 husbands killed their wives during the year and seven wives killed their husbands.

The report showed that 6224 violent deaths occurred in the city during the year.

There were 399 murders in the city last year as compared to 372 for 1927. Twenty-three homicides were shootings by police on duty. Auto deaths dropped from 972 in 1927 to 916 last year.

CALL 5 IN PROBE OF DRUGS

Los Angeles, March 7—After hearing the testimony of several witnesses, the Federal Grand Jury, which is investigating the narcotic situation in southern California, stands adjourned until tomorrow morning.

No indictments were reported. Whether any were voted was not disclosed.

United States Attorney Samuel McNab was in personal charge of the proceedings during the first session. Because he was forced to keep an appointment with a physician, one of his assistants, William R. Gallagher, handled the proceedings.

The matter of indictments or "no bills" will be definitely decided before the routine federal cases are considered, it was indicated.

Witnesses testifying were:

Dr. I. Jesse Citron, Beverly Hills physician; Harry Williamson, chief of the federal narcotic agents on the Pacific coast; A. M. Mooney, federal narcotic agent of Los Angeles; Mrs. Elizabeth P. Hill, nurse at the Sylvan Lodge Hospital; Hugh Lenahan, narcotic inspector for the state board of pharmacy, and others.

Dr. Citron had not finished his story when the noon recess was called, but was not recalled, although he was requested to "stand by."

BLIMPS IN BIG STORM WIN OUT

Washington, March 7 (AP)—The battle between the blimps and the March wind was apparently at an end today with honors about even. If there was any advantage, however, it seemed to be on the side of the weather.

Two Army blimps, the TC-10 and the TC-5, and two Navy blimps, the J-3 and the J-4, came here for the inauguration.

The real fight began Tuesday night, when emergency crews were called out to help hold three blimps moored over Bolling Field when a heavy wind rose. It increased steadily during the night and when morning came the two Navy blimps had been deflated and the TC-10 flew to Langley Field, Va.

Previously the TC-5 had attempted to reach Langley Field, but the effort failed and it was back at Bolling Field last night. Shortly before midnight the wind rose again and this time the blimp headed for Lakehurst, N. J., reaching there safely early today.

GIRL, SHOT IN HEART, REVIVED

Moscow (INS)—Government hospital physicians succeeded in keeping alive for 20 hours an 18-year-old girl with a bullet hole through her heart.

The girl, Maria Stackelberg, was delivered at the hospital in an ambulance 15 minutes after being shot. Physicians operated immediately and succeeded in checking the blood leakage from the heart. They attached a blood circulation machine to the main artery.

This same machine was used some months ago in bringing a "dead man" back to life. The switching of the man's muscles and the gurgling noises in his throat were so shocking, however, that the physicians vowed they would never try the experiment again.

Within an hour the girl recovered consciousness to such an extent that she told the police the name of her sweetheart, who had shot her during a quarrel. After another hour her mind was apparently blank, although she did not actually die until 18 hours later.

Have you all of your own teeth?

Unless you take preventive measures now, the day is coming when you may know, to your sorrow, that the true meaning of the phrase "artificial denture" is often the extravagant price of self-neglect—false teeth. Here's the reason and the way to help safeguard health against the coming of this day.

Teeth are only as healthy as the gums. And gums, undernourished and under-exercised, soon surrender to dread diseases that ravage health and often destroy teeth. To prevent this, avail yourself of the best care that modern dentistry offers. Place yourself in the hands of your dentist at least twice a year. And brush your gums when you brush your teeth, every morning and night.

But for this purpose—use Forhan's for the Gums... the dentifrice designed to help firm gums and keep them sound, thus protecting them from the attack of disease.

Use Forhan's regularly. You'll be delighted with the way it makes your gums look and feel. In addition, you'll notice that it effectively and safely cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay. Get a tube of Forhan's—today!

But FEET go on forever...

Styles in shoes come and go just as in hats, costume jewelry and breakfast china. But your feet simply must keep active all the time. Which is an argument for shoes that think of feet as well as style.

Coward shoes haven't one-track minds. They think of both style and comfort at once, and they serve both masters well. For our new styles are sure to delight any feminine eye, and are comfortable enough to delight any feminine foot. Come see; come try!

BOSTON RACING ENTHUSIASTS GATHERING FOR AINTREE STEEPLECHASE—BETTY ALDEN

Grand National Proves Magnet to Draw from All Parts of the World

BOSTONIANS WILL BE THERE AT AINTREE, on March 22. Breathless with excitement, when by a "nose" or a "length" another Tipperary Tim or a Billy Barton reaches here Becher's Brook and the Water Jump of the world's most gruelling steeplechase course and comes home winner of the famous "Grand National." And Boston will be there for the glorious night before at the Hotel Midland Adelphi on the eve of the great struggle for which the sporting aristocracy of five continents gathers annually in the small English city near Liverpool.

THE ARISTOCRAT OF THEM ALL IS THE Grand National. Crowned head and commoner; the cockney, colonial and all strata of society have a Mecca in common on the day of days. Of course your Bostonian of horsey proclivities gladly negotiates a transatlantic crossing merely to be "in Aintree for the exciting twenty-four hours and yearly the exodus grows in importance. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sortwell already have taken ship and sailed away to be in good season for all the thrills that only such a steeplechase race can furnish.

"GRAND NATIONAL CROSSINGS" ARE THE steamship items from this side. The liner Paris advances her schedule an entire twenty-four hours to land her passengers in season for the classic. And the Berengaria sails Friday on a special Grand National crossing with the smart world that does on horses well represented in the passenger lists. When the liner pulls out into the stream tomorrow evening, one of those gay midnight sailings when departing voyagers arrive at the pier in dining out theater regalia, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wrenn and Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Ames will be aboard.

Mrs. Francis I. Amory

Mrs. Edward C. Wheeler

Boston matrons, who are devoted to their pet charities and now promote a double benefit at the Boston Garden, April 3, when the Royal Belgian Guards' Band appears.

THE SPORTING FRATERNITY ALSO INCLUDES MR. AND MRS. SUMNER PINGREE, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Rogers, Mrs. John Lawrence, Miss Ella deT. Snelling, Dudley Pickman, Warren Motley, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Shaw and J. B. Holden—Bostonians all, and keen for anything of Grand National calibre. Saturday the Aurania departs from New York with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Grinnell of New Bedford, Joseph W. Woods and Miss Elizabeth Stewart aboard, and the Lancastria already has sailed, with Mr. and Mrs. Augustin H. Parker and Miss Alison Haughton down on the passenger list.

THE WRENNS HAVE TAKEN A HOUSE AND WILL ENTERTAIN compatriots for the great week and the great day, which may see the favorite, Great Span, come home the winner. At least every American will have choice places in the county stand and dash down the final turn (that isn't so great a turn this year, having been rearranged somewhat), when the field comes thundering along. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., inveterate sportsman, goes over for the occasion and will be domiciled at Chester, at the Grosvenor Hotel, a short motor journey from Aintree's famous course.

HOWARD BRUCE, FAMOUS AS THE OWNER OF THE FAMOUS "Billy Barton," will be on hand to see the stout-hearted steeplechaser negotiate the more than four miles of stiffest going. Mr. Bruce is, so I believe, to be house guest of the Roydens, and so be right in the very thick of Grand National festivities, before and after the running, and see the great adventure most advantageously.

CERTAIN HIGHLIGHTS OF THE FORTHCOMING "VINCENT VANITIES" will blazon forth in the program as acts professionally perfect. Whatever bears the Braggiotti stamp is Terpsichorean perfection, and the duet Misses Gloria and Francesca Braggiotti are arranging for the Vincent Show will delight every eye, feminine and masculine, in the always appreciative audience. Always original in conception and beautifully done, with costumes and settings distinctively Urbanesque, a Braggiotti number in any amateur production immediately gives a cachet quite unmistakable.

OUT IN SUNNY CALIFORNIA DOING THE DAUGHTERLY thing, Miss Gloria Braggiotti tarries with her well known pater, Isadore, for some balmy weeks in Los Angeles. She comes steaming home in good season to put the final finishing touches on the duet number for Vincent Vanities presentation early in April. En passant, one hears that Miss Francesca Braggiotti, in a white velvet and gold lace robe de style, was perfectly ravishing at the very smart Chauve Souris opening, resplendent in a stage box with her fiance, John Davis Lodge.

IN THE LONG AND BRILLIANT LIST FOR FRIDAY EVENING'S benefit performance at the Opera House for Ellis Memorial Miss Braggiotti's name naturally appears as a box holder, since it is Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn who scintillate as star attractions. Visitors of such professional renown would have many pleasant things done for them, during a short Boston visit, did crowded hours and a relentless schedule permit such relaxations. Miss Miriam Winslow is a potential hostess, and of course Miss Braggiotti's inclinations are toward the hospitable gesture in compliment to her confreres of the dance if opportunity offers.

AND OF GESTURES, IT IS A MOST GRACIOUS ONE MISS BRAGGIOTTI extends certain of her pupils, past and present. She plans to take over the Statler ballroom March 23, and in that imperial spaciousness turn loose some few chosen coryphees who may demonstrate their grace and poise in the dance. Miss Winslow, a slender sapling of a girl, almost professionally perfect; Miss Agnes Boardman, gifted daughter of the Gerald Boardmans, and Miss Eugenia Frothingham, third of the Langdon Frothingham daughters, will be of the number to present themselves, under the aegis of Miss Braggiotti.

WITH OFFICIAL SANCTION FROM A GOVERNOR AND A MAYOR the monster benefit at the Garden tomorrow evening, when a Dundee meets a Mello and interesting fisticuffs result, moves on to its appointed hour. His Excellency the Governor and His Honor the Mayor both put their signatures to letters most complimentary to the cause, a double one to receive benefit—the Boys' Club of Boston and the Children's Friend Society. Benefits at the Garden, aside from official sanction, measure up to the popular approval—and a record "gate" is assured. Mrs. Huntington R. Hardwick, prime mover in the Garden affair, is quite beaming—in this day of never-ceasing "benefits" it's a feather in one's cap to stage a successful one.

THINGS WENT FORWARD FAMOUSLY YESTERDAY WHEN Mrs. Samuel D. Warren entertained at luncheon at her Marlborough st. establishment and executives for the benefit April 3 at the Boston Garden met for refreshment and discussion. How frequently the Garden figures nowadays in the towns philanthropic calendar! Its enormousness attracts the dollar-hunting ones who would renew the cheerful clink of coin in depleted tills. Mrs. Warren and her associates for the Infants' and Lying-in Hospital double benefit consider the Garden none too large to house the company they desire for the Belgian Guards' Band performance April 3.

MESDAMES FRANCIS I. AMORY, WILLIAM E LADD, ALEX WHEELER, Edward L. Bigelow, Thomas B. Gannett, Jesse Koehland, Richard M. Russell and Samuel Eliot figure largely in preliminary arrangements—and having a flare for expert management of stupendous undertakings look smilingly into the future. They know the wherefore and the why of benefits, and do them expertly.

Women Urged to Aid Unprotected Girls

"THE modern American girl is paying the price of political equality with her brother today by facing, unprotected, a jazz-mad world of chaotic social, moral and economic standards."

Miss Elizabeth R. Mertz, national advisor of the Big Sisters, Inc., electrified 400 members of the Florence Crittenton League at its annual meeting at the Hotel Statler, by placing the responsibility for these unprotected girls squarely upon the shoulders of the women.

"The economic independence of women, which today takes a young girl wage earner away from the parent roof just when she needs its care most; the instability of modern marriage, which makes the young people doubt the permanency of everything; bad housing in crowded cities, and outside recreation; lack of discipline in homes, and the mechanical inventions such as the radio and the automobile, have revolutionized the social and economic standards of the world today," Miss Mertz said. "Adults seem to have set the pace, and youth to have stepped on the gas.

"Speed is the keynote of the age, and with speed must come change that leaves the youth unable to discern what is right and what is wrong. The old standards have gone and the new have not yet been established.

"What was improper for a girl to do yesterday is not so considered today. Who ever heard of a chaperon going with a girl on an auto ride today?

BROKEN HOMES INCREASE

"The modern youth is ready to try everything for the thrill of it, for self-expression, and I want to tell you that it takes finer and better boys and girls to live virtuously in this generation than it did in the past one; it takes stronger character to win out against the 60 miles an hour pace when the whole world is running in high gear, and to combat the industrial life of our times."

Miss Mertz pointed out that industrial life has increased the number of broken homes where there is no father to stand between a girl and the world where she goes out, unprepared, to battle for her living.

"We live so fast that there seems to be no time to build character in the home, to meet the situation outside," she went on. "And because so many homes cannot meet it, social agencies are trying to help.

"On the shoulders of the women of today rests the responsibility of our American girlhood. It is up to us individually to extend the friendship which will be a lasting good for the girl who needs us."

How to Darken Gray Hair

By BERYL WEST

I repeat what I have often said — there's no excuse today for woman submitting to gray hair and looking older than she feels. Gray, faded or streaked hair may be so perfectly restored to color that it need be only your own boudoir secret. Nothing more or less than a mixture of sage tea and sulphur is the magic.

One may either prepare the mixture at home, or as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the trouble of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it, and draw it through the hair, one strand at the time. One application banishes the gray and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no artificial, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. My readers would be surprised if they knew of the thousands of men and women who use this preparation.

Many Mothers Have Made The Discovery That Children's Colds Can Be Avoided

Don't Muffle Youngsters Up Too Much. Build Up Their Bodily Resistance.

Keep Them Too Healthy to Catch Cold—With Time-Tested Combination of Carbohydrates With Iron.

It used to be that careful mothers worried themselves almost sick over the fact that their children were always catching colds. But they did not know what to do to avoid this condition. In their anxiety they sometimes muffled them up too much, kept their homes overheated and made other mistakes that simply weakened a child's powers of bodily resistance.

Now mothers know that the thing to do is to build up the children's vitality, to keep them too healthy to catch cold with Hoff's Malt Extract with Iron—the food tonic that is rich in the carbohydrates of maltose and diastase.

Hoff's Malt Extract with iron, mixed with milk, is not a med cine, but a liquid food. It is the ideal nutrient digestive that increases appetite and has none of the distasteful qualities of fatty or oily preparations, which so often disturb sensitive stomachs. Do not confuse Hoff's with alcoholic preparations. They depend upon strong stimulants for their popularity instead of food elements and are, at best, merely temporary measures that afford no permanent benefit.

Iron used in Hoff's is the soluble peptonate of iron with manganese—the kind that is easily absorbed and does not cause any irregularity to the system.

Aside from its benefit to children, grown men and women have known for years what an ideal tonic Hoff's Malt Extract with Iron is for their own use. For that extra strength that everyone needs these days—for muscle tissue, body fuel and for energy, take Hoff's every day—a wine glassful with meals and at bedtime. Buy it by the case. Keep Hoff's always on hand.

"Ten Good Pitchers on Squad"—Evers

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7—The Braves will have good pitching this year. Johnny Evers and Hank Gowdy have decided that after watching the chuckers work for the better part of three weeks. The pair of right eyes are quite enthusiastic about the mound question.

"There are 10 pitchers in this squad who should make good on any big league team," declaims Mister Evers. "That isn't spring poppycock.

I have been watching the boys throw that ball, and work on the mound, and I mean what I say.

"Brandt and Jones are first-class lefthanders. Greenfield, Delaney, Cantwell, Bob Smith, Leverett, Werts, Cunningham and Seibold are good right-handers. All in all, the squad looks as good as any I've seen with a club that wasn't a one, two, three outfit, for a good many years.

Nick Flatley

"A few of these boys have been up and down, and one or two have been on the verge of making good. From the way they have started this year, it looks as if they were all about to arrive.

"A club with that many pitchers ought to come through, especially when you stop to consider that there hasn't been a sore arm in the whole troupe, and that everybody will go to the start feeling right.

"A good strong pitching staff at the start of a season can make a ball club. The batters haven't their eyes, and a team with pitching has a great chance to win a lot of games. That builds spirit, and confidence and they do plenty.

"There are other pitchers on the squad, but they are still in the experimental stage. I'm talking about the ones who have worked enough to give a good idea of what they have."

GOWDY AGREES

Hennery Gowdy, who is Johnny's yes man these days, chimes in with a few remarks.

"Johnny is right," chirped Hennery. "I've been working with the gang and they all know how to pitch. They've taken advice splendidly, and seem eager to learn things. The old spirit is there.

"This kid Cunningham has a barrel of stuff. Looks like a sure bet. Seibold and Delaney are two smart, shrewd birds, who remind me of Dick Rudolph the way they act and figure things out. Smartness in the box means plenty in baseball today."

Then, of course, Doc Painter, the chiropractic trainer, had to have his say.

"You boys mustn't forget Johnny Cooney, either," he submitted. "I have been working on that arm of John's and it is fine. There hasn't been a bit of soreness anywhere. If the bad elbow was still weak, it would have shown long ago.

"Cooney's arm is as strong as ever, and it just remains to be seen if he will have his control and curve when he cuts it loose."

COONEY CONFIDENT

And Mister Cooney asserts that he has all his old stuff, and he tends to grab himself a steady pitching job again, before the team gets North.

There you are. That's partly spring optimism, but it sells you the idea that there's confidence on this ball club right where it belongs.

The Braves may not have the world's greatest pitchers, but they have a gang that's good enough for the doctors, and plenty of them.

So maybe things will be different at the Wigwam this year.

The club's greatest weakness in the past few years has been in the box. If conditions there are improved, the percentages will go up.

The Tribe plays another practice brawl today, after a long batting session. The batters are way back of the pitchers, and work in the nets is the only cure for that.

The athletes have all been worked into great physical condition, except the latest arrivals, and drilling will be light from here in. One of the main objects of Judge Fuchs and his staff will be to keep the boys on edge, and still save their pep for the opening of the season.

It has been correctly doped out that some Boston teams of recent years left all their energy in the South.

Many Versatile Men on Red Sox Squad

By JOE CASHMAN

Bradenton, Fla., March 7—The Red Sox may not win any championships this coming season but if one were awarded for versatility, the Fenway flock would grab it off without much trouble.

Probably never before—certainly not in the memory of the writer—did any big league team boast as many all-around performers as does the latest Carrigan aggregation.

No less than 10 players, or, in other words, one in every four in camp, can play two or more positions and, in most cases, equally well.

Jack Rothrock tops the list. This young veteran held down every berth on the diamond, including the battery positions, at one time or another last season.

He was the regular shortstop at the start of the campaign and the regular right fielder against right-handed pitching at the close of the race. In addition to his ability to fill in at all positions, he is rated as the fastest runner in the American League.

CAN PLAY ANY POSITION

Rothrock is now listed on the roster as an outfielder. If he fails to win a garden berth, he will be given a chance to try his hand at something else. If he doesn't show enough to be a regular anywhere, he is likely to be kept right along because of his ability to play any place.

Next to Rothrock, Jerry Standaert is the most efficient jack-of-all-trades. Third basing is his regular job but he knows his way around all the other infield stations.

His versatility will probably win him a job with the Sox if he could play only first or hot corner, he wouldn't stand much of a chance, because Reeves appears to have that job all wrapped up with Bobby Barrett as an understudy.

But Phil Todt is the only regular first baseman and Bill Regan is the only regular second baseman in camp and since Standaert can, if necessary, spell either or both of these veterans, he is very likely to be retained, especially since he is a consistent .300 hitter.

GILLIS VERSATILE

Grant Gillis can play any of the infield positions, except first base. Just now, he is rated as first-string shortstop. Should he be beaten out for that berth, he will enter the races for the second and third base jobs.

Reeves and Barrett, present leaders in the fight for third base, both can play short. One or the other may be definitely out of the battle for the hot corner and be listed as the regular or substitute shortstop when the season starts. Both hit over .300 last season, are good fielders and valuable men to have around.

Hal Rhyne, who has arrived in camp, stepped right out to make a fine impression at shortstop. He can also play second base. In fact, he played the middle bag regularly with the Pirates two years ago and while he would rather play short, he may stick because of his ability at the keystone sack.

Freddy Moncewicz, former Boston College star, never played anywhere except shortstop while in school and college, but he has been tried at second and third, down in camp and has looked real well at both places.

Bob Asbjornson, young catcher from Concord high school, has also blossomed out as a versatile performer in the past three days by playing only the hot corner, he wouldn't stand much of a chance, because Reeves appears to have that job all wrapped up with Bobby Barrett as an understudy.

CONCORD BOY ON FIRST

He has an ideal build for an infielder, is a nice thrower and a powerful slugger. The Sox have plenty of catching strength but are decidedly weak in first base reserves. It wouldn't be at all surprising to see Carrigan try to develop "Ashy" into a first sacker. A season in the minors at that position and he should be a pretty good performer.

Outfielder Charlie Small was

BABE LOOKS AHEAD TO NEW HOME RUN HEIGHTS

RAWSON SOCK MENACE TO MILLS

Big Boy Rawson, the punchin' fool from Dorchester, will step out after Ernie Schaaf and Jim Maloney if he succeeds in knocking out Bob Mills, heavyweight champion of New Hampshire, in the feature 10-round bout of the Arena A. A. all-star card at the Arena, Monday night.

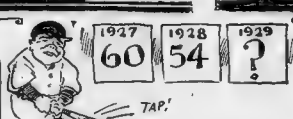
Sharkey, Maloney, and Schaaf have monopolized affairs in the heavyweight division for the past two years. Sharkey is out in front now, waiting to meet the winner of the elimination series which is to be staged this summer. Maloney is up there with Paulino and Schmeling. Schaaf is treading on their heels, and Rawson, greatest puncher ever developed in a local ring, intends to go after Schaaf first and then break into the charmed circle.

Rawson has taken the fight fans by storm. He has chalked up 12 successive knockout victories. He has crawled out of the rean dust to win. He has done everything that any young fighter could be expected to do, and as he swings into the last few days of his training at Toland's Gymnasium, he is confident that he will win his 13th consecutive knockout victory at the expense of Mills.

Mills is nobody's bargain. He is a rawboned, heavy-hitting southpaw, with plenty of experience. He has courage to spare. And in his corner will be one of the smartest of all handlers—Harry Kelley, the Duke of Bowdoin sq., former trainer of Johnny Wilson, once middleweight champion, Jim Maloney and Jack Sharkey.

Three more heavyweight bouts as well as three battles between little fellows, will be on the card, which is being staged at prices ranging from 50 cents to three dollars. Joseph Hambone Kelly, the mighty slugger from South Boston, will toss his punches at Big Boy Burlap of Westerly, R. I.

St. Pete Chatter



St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7—All four pitchers in the Tuesday game looked good. Greenfield was a trifle wild, but otherwise chucking properly. Cantwell made a bad throw that blew the ball game.

Seibold and Holshouser held the Yans to a pair of blows in six chapters, which is good chucking any time.

The regulars found Cantwell and Greenfield for five smacks.

Tony Piasisky, the large young man from South Boston, made a sharp throw to the plate and picked off speedy Early Clarke. Tony is still an Olympian in the matter of throwing.

Heinie Meuller is still hobbling on that bad dog, so he has been appointed umpire, vice Johnny Evers. Bruce Wetmore, club vice-president, went on the bases to help out Peter McKenna. As an umpire Bruce is a good vice-president.

A bunch of the visiting Eagles have joined the squad for the setting up exercises that go before practice starts. It may not make them athletes, but it certainly makes them tired.

The big suit and bat man, Joe Conway, dropped in for a visit and measured the athletes for uniforms. He was accompanied by Dr. Ross and Johnny Igoe.

Green Hurdlers in N. Y. K. of C. Games

Hanover, N. H., March 7—Four Dartmouth men will compete in the annual K. of C. games in New York, March 16.

Monty Wells, nationally known hurdler and record holder, will compete against his former teammates, Hugh Alcorn and Henry Putnam in 60-yard high hurdles.

BETTING ON GO AT EVEN MONEY

Dempsey Likely to Act as Announcer at Big Show at Garden

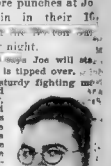
By JACK CONWAY

AL MELLO is ready to take a few more punches at Jo Dundee's chin in their 10-round bout at the Tow[n] Hall tomorrow night.

[illegible] Joe will stay down when he is tipped over.

When these sturdy fighting machines collided last January, Mello scored two knockdowns and grabbed the decision. He would also have annexed the world's welterweight championship if the artful Dundee hadn't managed to enter the ring overweight.

Dundee is out more protecting his precious championship by a few pounds of flesh, but Mello will try to get his satisfaction by closing with a crushing knockout.



Jack Conway

Make no mistake of the fact Mello can sock. When he hits the opposition right it quivers. Dundee didn't prove any exception to the rule. He wasn't any tougher than Eddie Roberts or any of the other welterweights whom Mello licked.

In justice to Dundee it must be stated he fought with great courage. He came up off the floor like a real champion. That after all is the test of a fighter.

Betting on the bout is at even money.

JACK Dempsey will be an added attraction at the Garden show. He will probably appear in the role of announcer. The Tiger hasn't the desire to batter any sparring partners around, while the rules of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission don't allow any other than boxing attractions in the ring.

Dempsey must abide by the same rules as an unknown preliminary boxer. This is perfectly proper. Otherwise the Commission would be a farce.

So be prepared to hear Dempsey say:

"In this corner, Al Mello, New England welterweight champion and in that corner Joe Dundee, world's welterweight king."

Dempsey will receive between $2500 and $3000 as announcer. Regular announcers like Frank Ducey, Johnny Hallahan, Gus Daly and Benny Oathues are willing to admit Dempsey has "it."

ONE, of the best preliminary cards of the season will support the appearance of the champion here. Arthur Flynn, Lawrence boy, will face Charli Arthurs of Newark in a 10-round bout while in an eight-round event Frankie Moore of the North End takes on Buster Brown of Baltimore.

In addition, there will be three six-round bouts. Joe Taveleri of Cambridge, faces Eddie Fister of New Rochelle, while Joe Hatfield of Philadelphia, is carded to oppose Sam Cherroff of New York. In the opening bout, Tony Schucco of the North End, meets Tom Watkins of New York.

H. C. Frosh Wins

Southbridge, March 7 — Holy Cross freshman basketball team defeated Mary E. Wells high, 39 to 12, at town hall here. Five of the Cross was leading scorer, with a total of 10 points.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge May See Mello Fight

Northampton, March 7—Former President Calvin Coolidge received an invitation from Frank Stearns of this city to attend the charity boxing show at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Mrs. Coolidge was also invited and there is a possibility that both will attend.

Despite the fact that the ex-President signed the bill that made boxing legal in Massachusetts in 1920, he never saw a ring encounter between celebrities of the boxing game.

He has been urged to come Friday night and he probably will accept the invitation today.

Cambridge Boy Gets Wisconsin Numerals

Madison, Wis., March 7—The University of Wisconsin athletic council has awarded freshman numerals and sweaters to Howard Meagle, Wheeling, West Va., and Douglas Simmons, New York City, for competition in football last fall.

Alexander Liveright, Philadelphia, Pa., was awarded his varsity numerals and sweater for competing on Coach Jones' cross country team.

Joseph Parker, Cambridge, Mass., was also awarded his numerals as a freshman in this event.

Harvard-Yale Sixes in Final Workouts for War

CRIMSON IN SHAPE FOR TUSSLE

Harvard Goes to New Haven on Saturday; Win for Crimson Ends Series

By TED LYNCH

Harvard and Yale close their respective training sessions, prior to their second ice battle on Saturday, with brisk workouts today.

Should Harvard be returned the winner at New Haven the sessions will be over for these two puck rivals for this year.

Yale will practice at the New Haven rink, the battleground of the coming encounter. Coach Stubbs leads his Harvard cohorts on the Garden ice surface for a two-hour drill, without scrimmage.

Both teams rest tomorrow and will not put on the blades again until Saturday night in the City of Elms, where the greatest battle-royal of all college hockey should take place.

CRIMSON PACKS

Following the workout at the Garden today the Crimson will start packing for the journey to New Haven.

Stubbs wanted to make the trip tomorrow, thereby giving his players a good night's rest and ample time to get over the two-hour train ride. However, many of the players are now undergoing the ordeal of the Harvard "April" mid-year examinations, which always come in March.

Manager Woodward, who is closing a great year as Harvard property man, has announced that the Crimson will leave for New Haven on the one o'clock on Saturday.

Besides Woodward, Coach Stubbs, Dr. Thorndike and the 15 players, there will be a large delegation going down with the team, including Athletic Director Bill Bingham.

PASSING WAS POOR

Coach Stubbs intends to put his varsity through a general skating session today. There will be no scrimmage or body-contact work. The forwards will be separated into three groups and the defense men will work out alone in the corporate section of the surface.

Although Harvard surprised all by defeating Yale 5-0 on Saturday, Coach Stubbs was by no means satisfied with the showing of his club. There was a lot of passing on the first line and had Bobby Giddens been fed the puck on three different occasions, Harvard would have won by a larger score.

VERSATILE MEN IN SOX CAMP

quite a pitcher at Bates. He is a southpaw, and will make the grade as a hurler, since portsiders are in great demand these days.

Bill Carlisle, in fact, completes the list of versatile performers. If he weren't such a great pitching prospect he would undoubtedly be used in the outfield as he is a classy ball player, a good long-distance hitter and has a fine arm.

The Sox could use an outfielder like Ruffing right now, as Carlisle pitches superb ball from the very start of the season he may be given a tryout in the pasture.

This all-around ability of so many players may not help the Sox any, but it surely can do them no harm.

One outstanding substitute player, who can hold down most jobs as well as the regular guardians, has been known to make a second-division team into a pennant contender, and with ten to pick from Carrigan may find one who will do the same for the Sox.

The split in the squad, scheduled for today, did not materialize. Manager Carrigan was all set to make it, but he put it off until tomorrow when he learned that the boys wanted to look over the Ringling Brothers circus parade, quartered over in Sarasota, this afternoon.

Bill feels that the athletes need a little recreation after the fast pace they have been hitting since coming to camp, and as the double workout system would prevent half the players from taking the afternoon off, he will not put it into operation until tomorrow was graduated from the Hanover institution he was appointed head coach, but, due to inexperience, plus the fact that he was coaching players with whom he had played, Cannell did not get away.

HAWLEY QUITS AS DARTMOUTH GRID COACH

However, the Everett boy has been Hawley's right eye for four years and has letter perfect knowledge of the Hawley system from every angle. Due to the fact that Cannell, along with coaching at Dartmouth, has also been the chief scout for four years, he has a good general idea of modern football as any coach in the East. Cannell is a keen student of the game and is very progressive.

In spite of Hawley's great reputation a as builder of football machines, Jackson Cannell should carry on successfully, as did his predecessor. Cannell is a product of Everett high school, where he quarterbacked championship Suburban League teams for three years.

The Everett star had no trouble making the Dartmouth varsity in his sophomore year, and during the three years he quarterbacked the Green team he was recognized as one of the best field generals in the game.

Cannell will doubtlessly reorganize the coaching staff at Dartmouth, for, along with Hawley, Johnny Phillips will not be back next fall. Dr. Norman Cryp and Hago Hagenbuckle will probably be retained by the Everett man as line and end coaches, respectively.

Cannell must get a backfield coach and an assistant for Crisp to round out his corps.

Jackson Cannell during the off season is in the automobile business in Malden, is married and has one child. As usual, Cannell will spend about a month at Hanover this spring, during which he will hold spring practice

Three-Team Tie in N. Y. Bike Race

New York, March 7 (AP)—Three teams were deadlocked for the leadership in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden today, after the most sensational riding of the grind.

Not until 6 a. m. did the cyclists ease up in their spirited sprints in an endeavor to break the trips tie that left the three teams locked with it than the punishment assimilated in pursuit of the sour science.

Yet it must be obvious to anyone that a blow of sufficient force to render a man unconscious, and this not at first blow repeated time and again, cannot fail to addle an organ, deteriorate at the human brain to some extent, regardless of the owner's habits or customs

LITTLE Ad Wolgast, a great lightweight champion in his day, died out on the Pacific Coast not long ago. For several years he went on the road and trained conscientiously for a fight with Joe Gans, the Baltimore negro, who also once held the lightweight title, though Gans had been dead a long time, and Wolgast's fighting days were far behind him.

Poor Wolgast was plenty punch-drunk in the later years of his life and it was divided about 50-50 between punches and dissipation. But oddly enough punch-drunkenness isn't as common among champions, as among the lesser sour scientists, probably because the champions are usually such good fighters they don't take much punishment.

Hard to Tell When Fighter Is Goofy

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

NEW YORK, March 7—I note in the public prints a legislative effort to bar from the arenas of New York State devoted to the sour science all boxers regarded as chronically punch-drunk.

A meritorious measure, my comrades, but I rise at this moment to address the chair on the following question:

"Who is to decide when a boxer is punch-drunk, chronically, or otherwise, and what specific symptoms shall be deemed evidence of punch-drunkenness?"

And to this puzzler I might add the interrogation as to what degree of punch-drunkenness shall be deemed a definite bar to the New York activities of a sour scientist?

If a gentleman is just bobbing a bit as he walks, or mumbling somewhat as he converses, shall he be adjudged so slug-nutty "at he cannot participate in our local ear-scrambling?

You know punch-drunkenness manifests itself in myriad forms aside from walking on the heels or talking as if the mouth were filled with a hot potato, and any legislation on the subject must be very explicit, in fact, I contend that it ought to take cognizance of the punch-drunkenness that arises from other occupations besides the sour science.

I have known legislators to wind up a little punch-drunk from the reverberation of their own voices raised in behalf of daffy legislation.

THERE can be little doubt that the constant beat of blows against a human bean, none too carefully executed by natures in the beginning, eventually produces a certain grogginess of the mental processes that we describe as punch-drunkenness.

The brain gets to rattling ar und inside the old noggin, and presently the sour scientist is about 70 cents short in a $5 note, as the boys say. Meaning that he is trifle screwy.

Yet he may not exhibit his mental tipsiness to the naked eye. I know several sour scientists who walk without bouncing, but who suffer from delusions of grandeur. It is nothing serious, yet these delusions are undoubtedly the result of punch-drunkenness.

But it is only fair to the sour science to say that punches alone do not always produce punch-drunkenness. Booze and disease often help the case along. In fact, I am inclined to think that in at least 75 per cent of the cases of punch-drunkenness, it will be found that booze and disease had more to do with it than the punishment assimilated in pursuit of the sour science.

DE VITO WARS WITH MAGUIRE AT GRAND

Joe DeVito, the well-built, fiery Italian youngster, will make his big time main bout debut tonight in the Grand Opera House, when he will clash with Irish Ned McGuire in the feature match of Paul Bowser's all-star wrestling tournament.

DeVito comes here with the reputation of being one of the most promising young wrestlers in the world. He has been a huge drawing card in Providence, where he has featured the biggest attractions the Rhode Island city has ever known.

The young Italian mat star is only a stone's throw away from Somerset, Mainville, Peoria and McLeod, the four leaders in the wrestling world.

He is rushing along at their heels, a 21-year-old marvel who even now is threatening their supremacy.

He expects to defeat McGuire, and then he wants a crack at Strangler Lewis, one-time king of the grapplers.

McGuire is a rough and ready old war-horse. He always puts up a fight, always entertains the customers, and always gives his opponent an uneasy minute or two.

The big Irishman is about the strongest wrestler in the world. He started the season with a rush, but went stale from over work. After a long layoff, he is confident that he will step off on the right foot again tonight by defeating DeVito.

Tigers Are Apt to Lose Some Fur in Struggle With Reds at Arena

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

Tiger Six Scrap With Reds in Arena Tomorrow

HUB TEAM IN BEST FORM OF YEAR

Win Tomorrow Practically Assures Tigers of Finishing at Can.-Am. Top

Boston Tigers, at the height of their form, will meet their old rivals, the Providence Reds, in the Arena tomorrow, in the most crucial game of the Canadian - American League season to date.

The Boston battlers now have a full game on the Reds, and are looking down on the whole league, but if the Reds should beat them there will be another tie for the leadership. Consequently Manager Eddie Powers will issue orders to cut loose at the start and try to blow the Reds off the rink.

Up to last Tuesday Providence had the Boston forces "hexed." Tigers broke down the jinx with a 4-to-1 victory over the Reds on that occasion, and nothing can convince the players that they are not going to repeat the process.

Victory practically would assure the Tigers of finishing at the top of the standing and drawing the coveted bye position in the play-offs.

TIGERS IN SHAPE

Tigers came through the Providence game without a scratch or a serious bump.

Tall Deacon White, who was crashed, hacked and tripped continuously by the Providence defense when he started slipping through, came out of it in great condition, and confident that he will be able to keep on beating the Red points tomorrow.

Reg Mackey, having blown one past Mickey Murray from the blue line, believes he has the Providence goaler's goat and will pop them at him from all angles.

The balance of the team are looking forward to getting square for many indignities suffered at the hands of the Reds before the jinx was broken.

BIG TICKET SALE

There has been an unprecedented demand for tickets throughout the week and indications are the largest crowd of the season will attend.

Several hundred fans will come up from Providence in the hope of seeing their team get even.

Tigers had a brief workout today and the boys went through their plays with the same dash and punch which has characterized their work in actual competition.

Princeton Five Sinks to League Cellar

New York, March 7 (AP)—Although the championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League will not be settled until tomorrow night or later, the occupant of the cellar already is known.

By losing its eighth game of the season to Columbia last night, Princeton dropped its last chances of getting out of last place. The Tigers now have eight defeats and but one victory.

The Tigers put up a game struggle to stay in the running, but the loss of Paul Carey, star forward, was a bit too much.

After he was disqualified for personal fouls, Obey, Columbia forward, sank a field goal to tie the score at 23 all and in an overtime period the New Yorkers pulled out the game 25 to 24.

Princeton has one more chance to redeem itself Saturday against the league leading Pennsylvania team.

Billy Wallace Wants Rival's Name Changed

New York, March 7 (INS)—Billy Wallace, hard-hitting Cleveland lightweight, declared he will attempt to have his name copyrighted as protection against a Youngstown (O.) boxer who has been fighting under the name of Young Billy Wallace. The original Wallace claims his ring reputation has been damaged by defeats suffered by the Youngstown man, who was identified simply as "Billy Wallace" in several press reports.

54-Year-Old Jockey Boots Home Winner

Miami, Fla., March 7 (INS)—Jockey Arthur (Red-Coat) Murray, 54 years old and grandfather, can still boot those winners home. The veteran of the saddle showed the youngsters how to bring a horse home on the chin strap when he rode Migard to victory in the first race here yesterday.

The regulars had confidence in "Grandpa's" ability, for Migardo was fairly well supported, paying $ to 1.

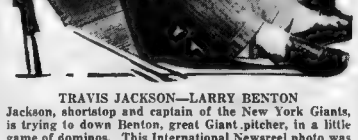
TRAVIS JACKSON—LARRY BENTON

Jackson, shortstop and captain of the New York Giants, is trying to down Benton, great Giant pitcher, in a little game of dominos. This International Newsreel photo was taken at the San Antonio, Tex., training camp of the New York club. The pair above rank with the best in either big league in their respective positions. Benton should be up their battling for premier pitching honors this season. He has everything a good hurler needs.



MR. BOSTON held court for visitors in the Sports Department.

"The greatest sports promoter in the world," said the veteran laughingly as Paul Bowser drifted in to say hello.

"I cannot make a bow as I have a lame back," chirped Bowser. "But I thank you for the compliment just the same. I notice that you still have some of your Miami tan, but that's as it ought to be."

"How's this fellow Gus Sonnenberg?" queried Mr. Boston.

"That's the object of my visit," asserted Bowser. "I have Gus signed to tackle Joe Malcewicz in a finish bout in defense of his title of world's heavyweight champion at the Boston Garden a week from Friday night. You'll admit that's a good match."

"Try and beat it," said Mr. Boston enthusiastically. "I have always considered Malcewicz the uncrowned champion. He is fast, clever, strong and knows the racket. I'm for Joe."

"So are the cash customers," went on Bowser. "Gus and Joe are going to draw $60,000 which is a lot of money for a wrestling match or anything else."

Bowser then collected his wrestling literature and was on his way.

"HOW did Pat McCarthy look to you at Miami?" was Jim MacDonald's opening shot.

"He was well tanned and very healthy," replied Mr. Boston.

"I know he's healthy enough," piped MacDonald. "I want to know how he shaped up when fighting, not how he looked taking sun baths on the sand."

"Pat looked the part of a two-fisted fighting person," answered the veteran. "He took on a fellow by the name of Sid Terris a week or so before the Battle of the Palms. Terris is six feet three and weighs 211. Pat scaled 178. Pat gave the big bird a boxing lesson. Terris wasn't exactly a pushover as he proved when he clicked Paul Hoffman out of the picture a week later.

"I felt sorry for Sully Montgomery when McCarthy got through with him in one of the prelims to the Sharkey-Stribling jam. Pat hit him with about everything and opened up a big wound over the former football player's left eye. McCarthy won in a walk."

This news appa.ently pleased MacDonald as he went away smiling.

COL. BOB McKIRDY called Mr. Boston on the telephone to say a few kind words about the 10-round bout between Big Boy Rawson and Bob Mills, which will be staged at the Arena on next Monday night.

"Mills has proved his punching power and gameness on numerous occasions," said the colonel. "Rawson is the latest sensation among the big fellows. When he hits them, they fold up like a tent. He has knocked over 12 huskies in a row and isn't worried over the fact that Mills has had plenty of ring experience."

DAVE ARRATA came in with an armfull of press-copy from the Boston Garden.

"I suppose I should buy myself a cane and a monocle now that society has gone in for the fight racket," sighed Dave, who is a fellow with a practical mind.

SERGT. EDDIE MACK was on the telephone a few minutes later to make sure Dave hadn't been shot down by snipers on his trip around to the newspaper offices.

"There are a lot of swell people behind this show and it is going over big," chirped the matchmaker of the Garden. "I wouldn't be surprised if Dundee evened up his score with Mello. Anyway, it will be a corking fight. That's what the crowd wants."

EDDIE HURLEY, sports writer, mentioned casually that Dick Finnegan will get 10 or 12 grand for his 10-round bout with Tony Canzoneri at the new Chicago Stadium on March 28.

"Loughran will get $100,000 if he wins from Walker and $150,000 in the event he drops his title," chirped Eddie. "Mickey will pull down $60,000 if he takes a pasting and $10,000 if he wins. The show will have to draw $300,000 to make everybody concerned with it happy. The Chicago Stadium can seat 25,000, and is the greatest sport palace in the world."

House of David Star Wants to Join Braves

Flint, Mich., Feb. 19, 1929.

Mr. Charles Adams.

Dear Sir—No doubt you have seen faces like the enclosed clipping before at the Braves Field. Two years ago the House of David Club was playing in the eastern part of the country. How well the club remembers the good old time at Boston for we met and made many friends while playing at neighboring towns.

Mr. Adams, today I am in the want of a job as an outfielder. I have played five years with the House of David Club, covering all the United States and Canada. I have had plenty of experience and could be used on any club as a rookie, for I have never signed a contract with any league club.

Have had plenty of opportunity to, but turned them down to remain in the colony, but now I have left the House of David I am a left-handed hitter, throw right, age 26, weight 170 pounds height 5 feet 9 inches.

McKay played center field for the House of David team and looked like one of the best ball hawks ever seen here, and certainly swung a mean bat, and once managed pyla i amthamhr once Manager Textor cast his eyes on the House of David beauty he would have to have him, but decided that McKay would have to shave off his whiskers. Dick hated to part with his flowing beard. Not every one can raise such a generous crop.

The letter was turned over to Scout Jack Slattery, and Jack will have the whiskered gentleman a chance.

EAGLES TO HAVE ANOTHER FINE BALL TEAM

By JOHN GILLOOLY

With one week of the spring training season written into the 1929 baseball history, the Boston College nine is beginning to look like a real club. On paper the Eagle outfit seems like a champion contender.

Coach Hugh Duffy—though his first team is still unsettled and the weeding process hasn't started—has been working out with a team that seems to possess batting and fielding power to carry the Eagle to the top.

The infield which has been working together consists of Capt. Al Weston, first base; Paddy Creedon, second base; Andy Spognardi, shortstop, and Hank O'Day, third base. This quartet may start the season and run through intact.

The shortstop berth is the only one in question. Spognardi, a sophomore, has got the jump on his rivals, and he seems good enough to hold the fort against all opposition. He has a tough road ahead in stepping into the B. C. infield and filling the shoes of Freddy Moncewicz.

But Spognardi, who proved a great assist to the Roslindale club in the Twilight League last summer, can field, hit and throw. With Weston, Creedon and O'Day flanking him Spognardi, or any short fielder of even ordinary ability, ought to make good.

Radcliffe Five Defeat Wheaton

Radcliffe defeated Wheaton, 48 to 33, in their basketball game at the former's court. It was the third win in as many starts for Radcliffe.

The Wheaton seconds gained a little solace for their college by trouncing Radcliffe seconds, 48 to 23. Radcliffe led, 16 to 12, at the end of the first half of the varsity

TUFTS JUNIOR BEST MOUND CANDIDATE

The leading pitching candidate to date at Tufts has been a junior, Wallace Parkhurst, who saw some service in the box last year. He is on probation at present but expects to be ready to play by the time that the season rolls around.

Parkhurst, although a trifle short for a hurler, has the requisite weight and more experience in the box than any other man on the squad. He has speed and a fine change of pace but has been hampered in the past by lack of control.

Under the tutelage of Nash, however, he is expected to round into shape. He received his pitching experience prior to entering Tufts in New Hampshire high schools and spent last summer tossing them over for the Dover, N. H. organization.

Two members of last year's frosh outfit are also attracting plenty of attention from the experienced mentor of the Tufts outfit. They are Lucien Adams and Chet Storey.

TAD'S TIDBITS

FULL HOUSE TOM McARDLE, the Garden matchmaker, knocked all the clubs silly when he signed up Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller for a 10 rounder on March 22.

Miller is the Chicago cartoonist who recently cut Jimmy to ribbons in Detroit and made that young gent yell uncle in the seventh round.

Besides that Mr. Miller stopped Lope Tenorio in two heats and dumped Mr. Tommy Grogan for the full count a bit later.

Beware of cartoonists. That's all we can say.

Mr. Miller, who weighs in around 132 pounds, is a real honest to goodness lightweight. He will be giving smiling Jimmy a lot the best of it in the weights but feels that the latter being "a sucker for a left" will hoist the white flag against and add a few more gray hairs to Pop Foster's remaining strands.

WAITERS, cooks, windowwashers, cashiers and dishwashers at Dinty Moore's corned beef and cabbage joint are getting their rolls ready to bet on McLarnin once more.

Those left-handed specialists, such as Miller, Bud Taylor and Sammy Mandell, are poison to Jimmy, but up at Moore's they won't believe it and will bet the family jewels gladly that Miller won't repeat.

If you have any intention of going to see this fight for heaven's sake buy your tickets before the specs get them. It's a cinch the joint will be sold out days ahead of the match.

Take this tip and get 'em early.

YES, you're right, he did all of those and them.

"Dear Tad.

"Was there ever an old timer named Aaron Lester Brown—"the Dixie Kid'? Was he there? Is it a fact that he beat Joe Walcott for the welterweight title; that he took the famous Georges Carpentier in a couple of rounds in Paris, that he hooked up with Willie Lewis, Jimmy Clabby, the Twin Sullivans and some of the other big timers of a few years back?

"This was all told the other night and I, with a few others, are wondering whether or not this is the correct dope

"Could you in your ever interesting 'Tidbits,' write a bit of a line about this 'Dixie Kid' to enlighten us" (Signed) BAANA."

A LOT of the Johnny-Come-Lately's never heard of Jon Bernstein, but some years ago also was one of the toughest featherweights that ever pulled on a glove. He wrote us a letter and he got a couple of squawks off his chest. He says that the majority of boys today can't fight a lick.

"Ninety per cent of them couldn't fight 23 rounds to save their lives. They are all in at the end of the tenth. Terry McGovern in his prime at 122 pounds could have taken on Benny Leonard and five of the best 135-pounders in existence today, and stopped them all in one night.

"Give Terry 10 minutes to rest in between each fight and it would not be a long night at that. Poor little Terry is gone, but his name will never be forgotten.

"Talk about the old days. I fought Marty McGee 25 rounds for Jim Kennedy at the Union Park A. C., and we each got $40 for our work. We signed up for 50 per cent of the house, but a terrible rain storm started at 7 o'clock and kept on all night. The box office take was $160."

The old Ghetto champ is now living down in Shepshead Bay and feeling pretty chippy.

ONE of our readers asks if Kid McPartland was a real fighter.

We answer, "Yes" and some mug. The Kid was not a terrific hitter, but he was a hard man to fight.

Among those he licked was Rufe Turner of California, a colored whirlwind who could hit like a middleweight.

The Kid also fought on even terms with Owen Zeigler, Jack Eversbutt, Joe Walcott Eddie Connolly and Joe Gans.

LOSS of body heat through the skin runs as high as 90 per cent. Proper clothing, therefore, holds this heat in winter while it allows it to be lost in summer. That is why we should change the weight and the texture of our clothing.

Martha Lee Tells of Liver Dishes

LIVER is not only an excellent and necessary food for children, especially the child of school age, but is also a valuable meat for the adult. It is more than just an ordinary meat—in fact, nutritionists pro claim it one of the finest of the meat foods. This is because liver is not only high in a very desirable and valuable protein, but also is a vitamine and minerals. Liver is noted for its high and available iron content found so necessary in building good red blood.

Martha Lee
(c) Bachrach

Since liver has a characteristic but attractive flavor, the homemaker wishing to serve this meat should consider seriously the foods that combine best with liver. The texture of liver is such that crisp or succulent and fat foods form the most attractive accompaniments.

I am sure your family will enjoy the following new and different suggestions.

FRICASSEE OF LIVER

2 lbs. of calf's liver
¼ lb. salt pork
2 level tbsps. butter or dripping
1 small onion
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut the liver into rather thick slices and the pork into dice. Melt the butter in the upper part of a double boiler; lay the slices of liver in it, and put in the diced pork; slice the onion and add with the parsley and seasonings. Cover closely and set the saucepan over the lower part of the boiler which contains boiling water, place at the back of the range where it will keep hot, without boiling, for an hour, then increase the heat and cook an hour longer. Thicken the gravy with a tbsp. each of butter and flour rubbed smoothly together, and serve very hot on toast points.

BEEF LIVER PATTIES

Scrape 1½ lbs. of beef liver; season with ½ tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper, and form into patties. Hold each patty in shape with a slice of bacon, saute in bacon drippings and with a brown sauce made by browning flour in drippings left in the pan, and adding enough water to form a gravy of the right consistency. Season to taste, or serve with a thick, well-seasoned tomato sauce.

SPANISH LIVER

1 lb. liver sliced ¼ inch thick
2 large potatoes
½ c. salad oil
½ onion
1 tsp. salt
½ bay leaf
1 tbsp. catsup

Carefully trim the liver. Rub each slice with onion and salt and for one hour keep it covered with the oil and lemon juice combined. Pare and dice the potatoes. Dice the liver, mix with potatoes, and add the bay leaf and salt. Cover with boiling water and boil slowly until the potatoes are tender. Just before removing from the pot, add the catsup. Place in serving dish and sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Serves five portions.

LIVER-STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

3 green peppers
¾ c. boiled rice
1 tomato
3 tbsps. grated
1 tbsp. salt onion
1½ lbs. liver
1½ c. boiling
water
Select peppers that will stand level. Remove a piece around the stem with the seeds. Pour boiling water over the peppers, and let stand half an hour. Cut the liver and tomato in small pieces; mix with the other ingredients except water. Stuff peppers, set in a casserole or baking dish. Pour in the water and bake 45 hour in a moderate or 375 deg. oven. Finish on individual plates, pour over Hollandaise Sauce and serve at once. Serves six portions.

Faithfully yours,

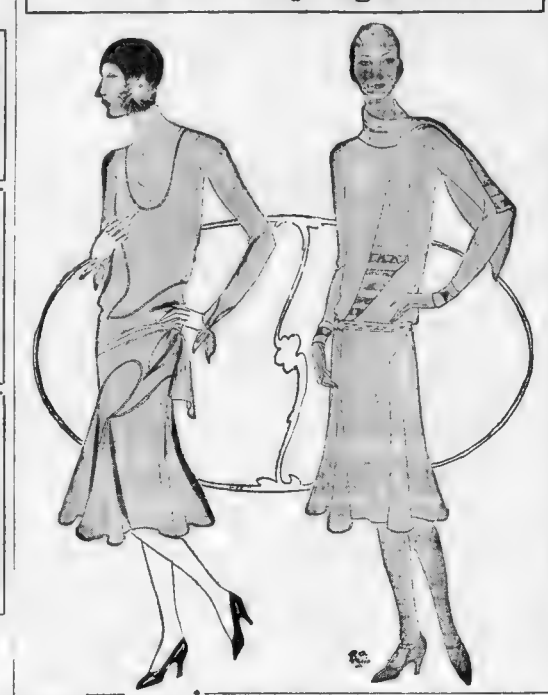
Art in New Spring Frocks



DECIDED skill is required to fashion a stunning frock which leans largely on its own fabric for trimming interest. This has been done for some time, but that very fact is sufficient to almost rob the method of whatever originality might exist. Yet couturiers somehow contrive to be ever original in their ideas.

Plain materials, as our enduring crepe de chine, georgette and crepe marocain self-trimmed, are the media most used in developing afternoon dresses, attention being directed to various lovely shades of green, porcelain tones of blue and several bright red. Black is as usual a popular choice.

Grasshopper green, repeatedly mentioned in word from Paris, is the shade in crepe marocain chosen by Germaine Lecomte for the afternoon frock here, displaying ingenious use of fagoting which sweeps down and around the blouse, about the U neckline and defines the hips, the points forming the centers from which very full circular insets are attached to the skirt. The cleverness of these fagoted lines is the suggestion of graceful movement common to the willowy figure.

In scarf collar dresses the newest couturier interest is created by that having one end of a scarf attached to the blouse from waistline to the V neck and the other end flowing loose and whither it will. As in the model of green wool from Bernard the scarf serves as the decorative theme, its ends incrusted with several rows of conventional designing executed in two shades of green leather.

One end of the scarf in this dress is attached at the waistline where it is accented by a buckle of gold metal which fastens the leather belt, worked in two shades of green leather to match the dress trimming.

Several print frocks for summer created by Worth also make the most of this scarf idea. Using a softer material he extends a gathered band diagonally across the blouse from waistline to neck, at which point it becomes a scarf and flows out into a long end which may be draped in various ways to please the mood of the wearer.

Regardless of their continued popularity of the winter, prints still hold the couturier interest. The combination of contrasting prints—contrasted in color rather than design—is seen to some extent. This idea is well done by Mirande in a flat crepe ensemble of three-quarter length coat and pleated skirt in a cream dot pattern on a navy blue ground, while white dots on pale green form the blouse and trimming.

Contrasting prints and plain colors as well are shown in the realm of scarfs, as in a long scarf collar one-half of which has white dots on a navy background and the other half has light and dark blue dots on a white silk. Jeanne Lanvin's now celebrated tie is a black scarf collar bordered with red satin along one half, the other edged with white, creating thus an attractive mélange of color when it its tied in a shoulder bow.

TROTTEUR TYPE

A smart trotteur type with fluttering kilted pleated skirt adopts a distinctly individual idea in yellow-brown sheer woolen overplaided in navy blue, with plain faille silk crepe in yellow-beige used for collar, cuffs and belt, with blue faille crepe bow tie creating vivid color contrast. Style No. 8023 is designed in sizes 8, 10, 12 14 and 16 years. It is also very striking in wool challie in modernistic print with crepe collar and cuffs with suede belt, featherweight tweed in beige and brown, tiny check with collar and cuffs cut on the bias of fabric for contrasting effect, with brown silk crepe tie, navy blue wool crepe with white crepe de chine collar and cuffs made detachable so as to be easily taken off to launder, with scarlet red silk crepe tie, and lipstick red wool jersey with natural colored linen collar and cuffs, lacquered black belt, and black silk crepe tie.

Today's Short Story

MARY RYAN was in love. There was no doubt about that for her heart did strange loops and curves every morning as she walked down Chambers st. and saw the Municipal Building looming [redacted]. Two weeks before this section of the treet caused no flutters in Mary's heart. But now everything was changed and all just because a fresh traffic cop had bawled her out one morning.

When Mary was perfectly honest with herself she admitted it was probably all her own fault. Yet she hadn't done it all by herself, either. For how could she help being scared when a big mail truck came hurtling past her?

And nothing could have been more natural than for her to grab something to steady herself and was it her fault that Providence had put nothing else within reaching distance but the coat-tail of Terry Delehanty? Maybe it wasn't dignified nor just for a young lady to grab the coat-tail of one of "New York's finest" and squeal at the same time at the top of her voice but that is just what Mary Ryan did.

In spite of all this perfectly rational behavior on Mary's part, Patrolman Delehanty acted very ungallantly. He wheeled about and grabbed Mary by the shoulders. He almost shook her right there in the middle of the street where everyone could see. Then he said in the crossest manner possible, "Look here, young lady, if you're as scared of traffic as all that, you stand on the curb until the lights are going your way. Don't come tiptoeing out to the middle of the street and grab my coat and wail like you're dying unless something's really the matter with you."

Mary had burned with indignation. "Don't worry," she had said and she had stamped her foot. "I'll never even pass by this corner any more so you won't have to worry about me scaring you."

In fact she had been so interested in being indignant she didn't notice she was walking right into the path of another car. The brakes screamed. The driver cursed and the traffic cop threw up his hands and bellowed, "Sister, what you need is a guide, a tin cup and a license."

The next day Mary walked two blocks out of her way to work She just couldn't face that cop She knew he would have said something fresh about her nearly getting run over. But the third day Mary had to pass by him for she was late and couldn't waste the time going out of her way.

He remembered her. When he saw her standing on the curb he motioned for her to stay there. Then with elaborate precision he stopped the traffic both ways and escorted her across the street in great style. He wore a big grin on his face but Mary refused to notice it. When she got across the street she didn't even say thank you. Just ran on without looking back.

Later in the day she was sorry. She talked it over with Mamie Schulz, who worked next to her. Mamie said, "Gee, Mary, I don't think that was fresh. I think that was cute. I think he must be a swell guy, you know, with a sense of humor. And it ain't often you can find a guy with a sense of humor."

So the next day Mary apologized He saw her standing on the curb, but made no effort to help her thread her way through the maze of traffic. She finally reached his side and tapped him on the elbow.

"I'm sorry," she said timidly. "I'm sorry I didn't thank you yesterday. That was awfully nice of you to help me across the street."

He grinned. "I don't want anyone getting hurt at my corner," he replied, and laughed outright as she flounced away.

After that she tried to dismiss him from her mind, but she simply couldn't. She saw him each day and always they had a smile and a quip for each other. Mary didn't like those jibes, yet she came back for more. Something funny made her do it—and made her give as good as she took.

She thought of an especially good taunt the day the thing happened. She had to smile about it as she walked cautiously to the middle of the street.

CAUGHT IN TRAFFIC

Just as Terry turned around and grinned down at her an awful commotion arose. One car was racing madly down the street with a taxi following. A policeman was standing on the running board of the taxi, his revolver in his hand.

Everything happened so quickly Mary never was sure what had happened first. All she remembered was that as Terry stepped out to stop the car, she saw a man's head rise above the door in the back and aim a revolver at Terry. There was no time for a warning and so Mary jumped in front of Terry. She felt two short, sharp stabs of pain, one in her arm and in her shoulder. Then she sat down suddenly and fainted.

The next day in the hospital Mary was laying still, looking at the ceiling, thinking it was a pretty touch world.

A tall red-headed man came in and sat beside her bed. She hardly recognized him in civilian clothes. She always thought of him in his uniform.

"Hello" she said in a tiny, query, little voice, for she felt as if she were about to cry.

"Why?" said Terry Delehanty, "did you jump in front of me? Why didn't you just give my coat-tail a jerk so as to warn me?"

"You should ask me why I didn't grab your coat-tail after the way you bawled me out that time," retorted Mary.

Terry said seriously, "I take that all back. Now I want you hanging on my coat-tail for the rest of my life."

A few weeks later a very nervous red headed traffic cop walked up the steps to the second floor of the Municipal Building and a young lady whose arms was in bandages At the landing they stopped out and looked down on Chambers street.

"Gee, Mary," said Terry, "I'll miss seeing you walk by every morning, but I guess that'll all be made up when I come home at night."

TOOK CATHARTICS EVERY NIGHT

Eating ALL-BRAN Relieved Constipation

Everybody who is slave to cathartics and laxatives will be interested in this letter—

"I took cathartic pills every night and sometimes in the morning myself and take away the awful headaches I was subject to. Two months ago I started eating a large bowl of pure ALL-BRAN with cream for breakfast and today I am in fine condition, better than I have been in three years. My bowels are regular every day. I have not taken one cathartic pill since I began to eat it."—Mrs. A. J. O'Connell, 83 Phelps Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

Constipation gets in its deadly work when bulk is left out of the diet. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, however, will supply this bulk. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action. Try a tablespoonful daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

Thousands have regained their old-time vigor and relieved constipation forever by eating ALL-BRAN. Doctors recommend it.

Household Hints

When wet weather dulls the furniture it should be cleaned by washing with a teaspoonful of vinegar to a pint of hot water. When dry, polish with furniture cream.

When making toast, slightly heat one side of the bread and then the other, leaving all browning to the last. This allows the moisture to evaporate.

Yellow and discolored piano keys can be cleaned with a solution of one ounce of nitric acid to 10 ounces of water. Apply with a piece of clean, soft flannel, taking care to prevent it dripping between the keys. If the keys are very yellow, rub carefully with lemon, then cover with prepared chalk and leave to dry. When dry, brush off, and polish with an old silk handkerchief or other soft, dry material.

The addition of a little hot milk when mashing potatoes makes them heavy and pasty.

The bow bows three times on an evening wrap of pink transparent velvet. A soft crepe bow of the same material perches itself jauntily at the back of the neck, and also at each side of the hem. The wrap achieves a yoke effect by reason of its fine tuckings in back.

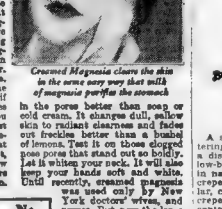
Ingratiating, intricate and ingenious is a bandanna of green crepe which wraps around the head in a most loving manner. This piece of very chic headgear for sports finishes up in a glorious finale, for it slips its two ends through two smoked crystal rings.

Instant Skin Beauty

Sallow, Dingy Skin made Lovely —Coarse Pores become Fine— It corrects oily skin, heals eruptions and dissolves blackheads

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia is much better for the complexion than any soap or cleansing cream. It beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, mean, and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.



Creamed Magnesia clears the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair. It removes make-up and exerts imperilous deep-set pore cleansing.

Bisch on Measles

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

THERE are few adults who have not had measles. In fact, measles is the commonest of all diseases in childhood.

Markedly prevalent though it is, the cause of measles remains unknown.

This is primarily why it is impossible to control its spread from one person to another. If doctors knew the exact organism which produces measles, preventive antitoxins might be made and definite, precise steps taken to guard against the disease. That time, however, is not yet.

That is just the point. Measles is not as harmless as supposed. Measles often runs into pn umonia. Besides, the heart may become weak. convulsions may occur, there may be coma.

In short, children may and do die of measles! This is true of infantile especially. The death rate may reach as high as 40 per cent.

Measles usually begins with an acute cold in the head with the ordinary, so-called "running nose."

A few days later the rash appears.

It often starts behind the ears, spreading rapidly to the neck, the forehead, later the chest and back, the trunk and finally the arms and legs.

This rash is very characteristic. It first looks like flea-bites, that is, a few small dark red spots here and there. Soon however, these spots become broader patches and run together. Often they become raised and look like water blisters.

The rash lasts about four to six days and then so-called "desquamation" sets in. During this stage the rash fades and the skin becomes scaly, like coarse powder. After a week of this the skin is again clear and healthy looking.

Throughout there are symptoms of a cold as regards the nose and throat. This varies in severity in different children.

The fever in measles may run quite high—to 105 degrees in severe cases. In milder cases to 102 and 103 degrees.

Digestive disturbances often accompany measles, and during the summer months this complication of diarrhoea may become even more serious than the complication of pneumonia.

Another serious complication, often seen in every epidemic, is disease of the middle ear, otitis.

Other serious complications, as I have indicated above, may likewise follow in the wake of measles, and therefore parents should not belittle the importance of the condition.

Now and again one hears of mothers deliberately exposing their children to contagion on the theory that, since every child gets measles, the sooner he gets it over the better.

Every child, however, need not get measles and all children should be protected against "catching it" as much as possible

One attack of measles usually confers immunity against a second attack. This rule, on the other hand, is not absolute.

The RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY

Revived by Merle W. Hersey

The Adventures of Great Detective Recounted

CHAPTER IV.

In this chapter Young King Brady shadows a young man who was following him. They are entrapped in an underground passageway, and become quite friendly in their mutual attempt to dig their way out of it.

IT is no easy matter to shadow a crook who is shadowing you at the same time, but that was Young King Brady's task.

Harry had decided to turn the tables on the young man. He walked rapidly north on Clark st. and turned into an alley without looking back. It was vital that the other man should lose him.

Upstairs in this block was a costumer whom the Bradys employed occasionally, and it was into this building Harry dodged and waited for his man to come on. He came! Harry dashed upstairs and made a hurried disguise, putting on a black wig and mustache. He then descended to the alley and walked right past the young spy.

After waiting an hour the young man entered the building. In a moment he reappeared and walked north on Clark st. Harry followed him down a dark alley, resolving not to lose him.

On the left was long brick-building occupied as a moulding mill, which was running full blast. On the left was a vacant lot, with one old dwelling house, occupied by a junk dealer. Harry looked around, hoping his man would reappear, but he did not. Just as he was leaving a man turned into the alley and entered the junk dealer's shop. It was Riffaldi!

"Well, where you are!" muttered Harry. He walked back to the junk shop and looked in. No one was in sight. A trapdoor in the floor stood raised. Harry stole up and looked down, seeing a ladder of considerable length which went down through a box-like enclosure of the same size as the trapdoor.

"Some underground hiding place," thought Harry. "Here is my chance to follow this thing up, although I shall surely run into the junk dealer if I try it. Guess I had better skin out." He was not an instant too soon. Two men appeared and came out on the sidewalk. They locked the door and went away.

Harry had decided that the place was a holdout, used by some gang of crooks, and that the ladder behind the trapdoor was a way into it. "It won't hurt to investigate. Now that I have located Riffaldi it is up to me to find where he has gone."

He resolved to tackle the junk shop at any risk, and opened the door with his skeleton keys. He lost no time in raising the trapdoor and starting down the ladder. He found a bricked-up passage leading directly toward the mill. He got out his flashlight and pushed forward. A few feet ahead was a pit, across which was a plank. Harry had just started over this when the young man he had been shadowing came suddenly from the other direction. Both stopped short.

Harry knocked off the plank. "If Riffaldi is behind him I shall have to shoot, but I may be able to bluff it out with one," he thought.

"Hello," said Young King Brady. "What are you doing here?"

Before he could reply there was a terrific explosion. The ground seemed to come up to meet him as Young King Brady was thrown against the wall on his right. The other wall collapsed, his flashlight was knocked out of his hand, and he was standing in utter darkness, wondering what it all meant.

He found his flashlight and advancing to the mouth of the well saw that the sides had caved in and the plank had fallen. The young man lay on top of the bricks, about 10 feet down from the level on which Harry was standing.

"Try to get up!" called Harry. "Are you hurt?"

"I'm lame and sore all over," he crowded as he rose. "What happened?"

"Of course not. Are you going to help me out?" he demanded.

"There is only one way. Get the plank out and pass it up to me, so I can hold it while you crawl out." Which he did with some difficulty.

They stood looking at each other. "Well?" said Harry at length. "I guess I have to fight or betweenus. What we want is to get out of this."

"That's about the size of it."

Harry let the young man go first and they started in the direction of the junk shop. The passage was blocked entirely.

They turned back and got hold of the plank; with some difficulty they managed to place it over the pit. Harry ventured across first, the young man followed. Before they had advanced five feet beyond the bend they ran into another complete blockade.

Suddenly Harry turned to the young man. "What is your name?" he demanded.

"George. What's yours?"

"Harry will do."

"Are you a detective?"

"Frankly, I am," he replied, thinking a little confidence might serve him. "I am working on a case and I saw a man connected with it go in the junk shop. I went in after him and opened the trap-door and I let myself down."

"Is the man you are after connected with a circus?"

"Yes. You know who I mean, I guess. I was shadowing him when I met you."

"I see. I hear the circus has been raided by the Bradys and Rashleigh arrested." George was silent for a minute and then wanted to know what Riffaldi was wanted for.

"Bank robbery at Spruce Ridge," replied Harry coolly.

"Say, there must be some mistake about that. How much did they get away with?"

"Sixty thousand dollars."

"Gee! I wish I had known it sooner. But there's no love lost between me and Riffaldi. I've taken a kind of liking to you—anyway, you've saved my life. I should have died of the horrors if I had been caught in this old trap alone."

"We are wasting too much time talking, George. Let's get busy and see if we can't work out of this."

No more was said and the two went to work at the pile of rubbish in the dark, using the flashlight sparingly. Hours passed. They worked and rested, and finally slept from sheer exhaustion.

Harry woke up first and went to work again. He soon removed the last brick needed to allow him to pass through. About ten feet further he came against the pipe with a ladder in it. He climbed up and stood listening, but on hearing a noise descended and hurried back along the passage. He wakened George.

"I've got a proposition to make to you, Harry," said George.

"All right," replied Young King Brady, "let it come."

"Now listen. I know nothing of this bank robbery until you told me. I hate Riffaldi and am glad to get square with him. The other night I overheard a conversation between him and another man—Riffaldi was evidently holding out money which belonged to the other man. It seems to me that maybe he has hidden the bank money somewhere. If you are game we'll put ahead and see what we can find."

"I'm with you," replied Harry.

They pushed on to the ladder in the pipe. George ascended and stood listening. All was quiet. He pushed up the trap-door which yielded to a secret pressure.

"Hist! Come on!" he breathed. "They are all asleep. Don't make a sound." Harry noiselessly climbed the ladder.

They hurried through the room and into a large, open cellar. In one corner was a pile wood, over which they pulled up. Harry flashed his light down into the hole, which was about four feet across and 20 feet deep.

"I have an idea that the money is buried down there" said George. "How can we get down?"

"That's the problem. You have no idea where he keeps the ladder?"

"No. Can't you think of some other way, Harry?"

"Sure, there is old piece of rope, enough to reach to the bottom of the hole. I'll go standing on your shoulder. Young King Brady was able to tie it to a beam overhead.

Harry then descended and George followed him.

The latter had had hard property dug up; I guess we are right in it, George," said Young King Brady.

"Rather. I'll work all afternoon on the porch awaiting him."

Then came in to Grayanda to get Miss Mercer, whom he found on the porch awaiting him.

sway he didn't tell her, for then I got here the next day, she did she never received the message."

Ken was interested in this story. Van Antwerp had said he saw Loring around in the grounds of the garden party. Of course, he might have been mistaken, but Ken thought it possible that Loring was using the untruth. If he had been he poisoned it was most probable that he would invent an alibi and say he wasn't there.

"Where did you dine that evening?" he said, casually.

Loring answered without hesitation. "At the University Club. Then next day I came out here, and we fixed up the business she wanted to see me about."

"Well," remarked Ken, "for my part I can't think that either Abercrombie or Miss Garth were mixed up in this tragedy."

"Oh, you can't," replied Loring. "Well, I can."

On the next day, Thursday, funeral services were held for Eileen Abercrombie. Maisie Nevada to attend. Miss Mercer, Hugh, and Percy all topped at her door, in vain.

Ken was spitting more and more interested in Loring. For if the lawyer had lied about telephoning, he might have told other untruths.

A long shot, but there was something fishy about that telephone message that nobody received, and if Loring was in need of funds there was some room for suspicion.

Moreover, he was a suspectable sort. With his insolent air and his unnatured voice, Ken cordially disliked him, and wondered why the fastidious Eileen had suffered him about, even though he was a cousin of her former husband.

Maude Mercer still bothered him. He was sure he had discovered a secret, but whether that argued her a suspect or just the reverse, he was not yet sure.

Seizing his chance as she came through the lounge hall, where he sat, he begged a word with her.

"Forgive me if I am abrupt," he said with his best screen smile "but I want to know something. Is Mercer your real name?"

"Oh, yes," she said, not at all offended.

"And so Maude your real name?" and now he looked at her with a direct gaze that seemed to compel the truth.

"It is," came the ready reply. "Yes, of course. Will you go to dinner with me tonight, to some quiet inn?"

"Yes, I will."

Unceremoniously Ken betook himself to Fetter's pantry.

"I say, Fetter," Ken began, "tell me in a few words what sort Mr Loring is. You've known him a long time?"

"Yes, sir. In a word, sir, he's all for the money. Lives, works, schemes for money."

Ken stared at him: "Did he kill Mrs. Abercrombie, to get his inheritance?"

"Oh, sir, because he wasn't here when the lady was poisoned, according to the doctors. But if he had been, I wouldn't put it past him."

"Why? Was he hard up?"

"Mr. Loring is always hard up, sir."

"How do you know?"

"The night before last, I was called to take some refreshment to Mr. Abercrombie's study. While I was setting things out, Mr Abercrombie and Mr. Redmayne were saying Mr. Loring had been making at Mrs. Abercrombie for money. And that something had to be done."

"And you say Mr. Loring was not here the day of the tea?"

I can only say that I didn't see him here."

"I believed he telephoned from New York, late in the afternoon?"

"Not to my knowledge. I took no messages from him."

Ken learned that James did not take the telephone message, and none of the extra waiters took it.

It began to look as if Loring had not telephoned at all. As if he had come to Greyanda secretly, had gone to the tea house, and finding Eileen alone there had managed to introduce the poison into her drink and then take his departure.

Why, Eileen, also kept his visit a secret was a mystery, but perhaps she hadn't done that intentionally.

Now that every one had left the house for the church, Ives hastened to make the most of this rare opportunity.

A quick hunt through Loring's traps brought confirmation of his hardupness, in the presence of a few bills and dunn in his pockets.

Another swift search was through the belongings of Eric Redmayne. Ther he found a small box, marked Mr. Bichlorde of Mercury.

Without opening it, he put it in his pocket

Next he went to Miss Mercer's room.

"And here he found in the medicine cabinet a small box plainly labelled Bichloride of Mercury."

He drew from his pocket the box and replaced it in the room of Redmayne.

He was precisely like the box he had just found in Miss Mercer's bathroom. He opened one and found the white tablets. Blue tablets of a peculiar shape. Not round but shaped like a miniature coffin.

An unmistakable sound of sobbing came from the room and he knew it must be Maisie.

He gave a low knock at her door, and cried out:

"Do let me come in! I'm Carlisle."

A sound of quick footsteps was followed by the unlocking of the door, and Maisie, disheveled and disheveled, cried:

"Oh, can't you do, do!"

Ken went in, and she flung to the door behind him.

"Oh, I can't stand it!" she cried "Tell me all about it," he urged, in a calm way, and the girl sat up "It's that—that Mercer person!" she exclaimed.

"You chose the right phrase.—that Mercer person," Ken said, looking at her sharply.

"Oh, do you know?" Maisie stared back at him.

"Yes,—or, that is, I have strong suspicions."

"Well, it's, true! She's—he's a man!"

"Yes, a man masquerading in woman's clothes."

"Don't moon over it, I'm going to tax her—him with it tonight. I'm taking her, yes, her, out to dinner, and I'm going to find out who's who and why."

"I have a notion he's all right, and can explain everything satisfactorily But you must promise not to betray his secret until I give you permission."

"All right, I promise."

Ken went back to the Inn and shut himself up in his room to think things out.

He spent the whole afternoon on this job and then engaged a small car and went in it to Grayanda to get Miss Mercer, whom he found on the porch awaiting him.

Miss Mercer, who was garbed in a smart sport suit of beige coloring, with a voluminous scarf of vivid red about her throat.

At last near, taking in the scene, and Percy Van Antwerp sat next to Maisie.

Ken and Miss Mercer went down the steps and he handed her into the car. Maisie ran down after her and Van Antwerp followed more leisurely.

Ken got in beside her and Miss Mercer leaned out of the open car to speak to Maisie.

Percy leaned over, pretending, in a teasing mood, to listen, and Maisie drew closer to catch Miss

Reno; the City of Divorce

By CORNELIUS VANDERBILT Jr.

CHAPTER 15

WITH Alex, junior, shouting in Peg's old playroom upstairs, and Stephen Pierce, the Desert Rat, playing combination nursemaid and bodyguard, Felicia became almost another person.

During these dread hours that her son was missing, she had held herself from breakdown only by terrific effort. Now reaction had set in. In a flowered chiffon dress, she lay on the couch in the Hodge living-room, a little smile playing about her mouth, one hand on a telling, so that her fingers brushed the carpet.

"Cigaret, Felicia?" Formality had ceased between Felicia and J. B. in these agonizing hours.

"Dam-n!" she smiled lazily at him. "Why shouldn't I? It's time I learned to smoke."

Dick frowned slightly as the girl's fingers steadied J. B.'s hand, holding the match for her. He sensed some strange new quality in Felicia, a fearless-ness and attitude born of the wave of relief that had surged over her.

Days passed peacefully, with no word from Bret, no cloud of trouble.

"Have you heard from him?" Is he in New York?" Dick asked her once.

Felicia shrugged. "I don't know, lucky, and I don't care. I want to forget that there is such a person as Alex Brett! For seven years he treated me of youth—of everything. And now he's gone! I hope he's dead! Oh, Dicky—Dicky—"

Her cheek brushed against his and her lips found his mouth.

"I don't care about anything!"

They were on their way back to the Hodge home; Judge and Mrs. Cooper were to dine with them, and they were already late. Felicia tore upstairs to change her frock; when she came down, Mrs. Cooper had followed Ann into the dressing room, and the three men, the judge, the doctor and Dick, were deep in discussion.

"We're talking about Reno," Judge Cooper told her, "as usual."

"Well, there's lots to say," Felicia replied, sitting down beside him. "They're the craziest people I ever saw!"

"They're masqueraders," said the judge. "I was just saying that. Some of those people at—oh, places like The Pines—give a preliminary cocktail party before they go to the theater, and they're all in costume. Some of them are quite clever at it."

"Oh, it's very hard, this being a judge's wife!" Mrs. Cooper murmured, and they laughed.

"What do you think about it?" Felicia asked abruptly, turning to the frazzle little old lady.

"Divorce?" Mrs. Cooper smiled. "Lend ashe's child, it's the only decent thing for people to do when they can't get along! Especially if they have children.

Felicia's eyes were dreamy. "Masqueraders," she repeated, more to herself than to anyone else. "City of masquerade!"

Again that premonition of alarm fluttered within Dick's heart. Somehow he felt afraid for her. How pretty she was in her evening frock.

"Well, there are a good many places here not to go!" the judge commented, rather dryly. "I had a client the other day who made an amusing analogy. He cited tales of men sent to the South Seas who drank heavily, made love to native girls and, as the saying goes, 'went native.' And he said that's what happens to decent, cultured Americans in Reno; that they come out here, restless and unhappy—and 'go native.'

She was merely responding to Judge Cooper's badinage, yet Dick felt a cold chill run along his spine. What if Felicia were caught by this reckless atmosphere? It was fantastic, impossible! But he wished that he did not have to leave her.

He had made all his arrangements to start on a business trip with Sam Lester the next day—the erstwhile mate a congratulatory telegram, wishing him or her luck next time."

"I was all run-down and out of spirits before my third baby was born so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me with all my troubles and gave me appetite, where before I didn't eat at all. I did all of my housework up to the day my baby came, as I am a farmer's wife and could not afford help. I feel just dandy now and I will answer any letters and I will tell every one how good this medicine is."—Mrs. Ira Arnold.

"I read an ad. in the newspaper and I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will recommend this medicine to any woman who is in bad shape like I was. I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. "Yes, sir, I am certainly proud of my little boy," says Mrs. Joseph Byrne, 6 Winslow St., Boston. "He's the picture of health as you can see, and I feel like he'll always be that way as long as I can get California Fig Syrup. I have used it on him ever since he was 6 months old. I knew what to give him for his colds and his feverish, upset spells because I had used California Fig Syrup with his older brother. I have used it freely with my baby and he loves it. It always frees him up, quick."

In many homes, the third and fourth generation are using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup because it has never failed to do what is expected of it. Nothing so quickly and thoroughly purges a child's system of the souring waste which keeps him cross, feverish, headache, bilious, half-sick, with coated tongue, bad breath and no appetite or energy as long as it is allowed to remain in the little stomach and bowels. Fig Syrup gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act as Nature intends them to do and helps build up and strengthen weak, pale and undernourished children. Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. The genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years, always bears the word "California."

WHY HAVE GROUCH?

By LUCY LOW[illegible]

HE is a nice little old person—not and not so very old, either, not more than sixty or thereabout—not nearly old enough to be as grabbed as he is.

You may meet him and talk with him a long time and go away thinking "What a perfectly charming person." For he can be quite fascinating when he likes, full of a dry humor and a viewpoint original as it is [illegible].

Of course he is rather important you would know that by the way he puffs out his chest like a pouter pigeon and by the way he "harrumphs" before he says something, he considers of consequence and by the slightly chilled glance he turns your way if you fail to agree with him in this or that.

But it is after you've met him several times and really understand him a bit that you come upon what you may call his hobby, complex, mania or penchant, according to what [illegible] he answer how you happen to look at it.

He always is going to sue somebody. He is forever making the threat, and the threat quite evidently is backed up by the purpose and intent, and those, in turn, spring from some [illegible] state of mind, some warped viewpoint, acquired goodness knows when or how.

He is going to sue the landlord because the furnace had to be repaired and the heat turned off part of the day. He is going to sue his neighbor because the neighbor's dog dashed across his lawn and trampled a tiny corner of hedge. He wants to sue his business rival for some ill-natured but harmless remark—it is said he even talked of suing a bridge partner for doing some one of those stupid little things people do at bridge.

Of course, he never actually gets into court with all of these projected suits. But he fumes and fusses and wastes as much energy and good nature as it could.

And it all very silly. But don't many of us get ... so silly about our grouches?

A grouch is a waste of good time, good thought, good disposition and often good friends. Why nurse a grouch?

'ABERCROMBIE MYSTERY'; A THRILLING NOVEL COMPLETE IN SIX DAYS

Mercer's whispered words.

Then, smiling, she drew back, and the chauffeur started the car.

Miss Mercer said a word of fare well, and Percy drew Maisie away from the car door on which she had been leaning.

As the car gathered speed there was a shriek from Miss Mercer, followed by a smothered groan.

One end of her flowing scarf was whipped over the side of the car and became entangled in the wheel. With a suddenness that dazed the startled spectators it tightened about her neck and dragged her out of the machine into the roadway.

It was Van Antwerp who sprang forward to lift the huddled figure from the ground, and Ken jumped from the car to help him.

The chauffeur had come to a stop, and he, too, joined the terrified group.

Together the three men lifted the broken body and carried it to the enclosed porch, where they laid it on a couch. Mercer was dead.

"Fly for Doctor Garth," Van Antwerp said to the chauffeur.

"Yes, yes," said Ken, "and after that, go and get Sergeant Downing. Where's Maisie?"

"Here I am," said a small, weak voice from the depths of a big porch chair.

Doctor Garth arrived then, and learned in a few moments the dreadful facts of the fatality.

"A terrible accident," he said, "but one easily explained. Was the —er—the victim leaning over the side of the car?"

"Yes," Ken answered him. "The top was open, and this long scarf fluttered out over the wheel. But, Doctor Garth, we all know that Miss Mercer was not a woman but a man. Did you know it?"

"Yes, I knew it."

Downing arrived with Garrett and after a brief greeting set about their work.

Later they joined the anxious company.

"I want to do the right thing," Hugh said, straightforwardly. "If we can't find out Mercer's relatives or friends tonight, we surely can tomorrow."

"I think we must try at once to find out Mercer's New York address and something about his people," said Redmayne.

"There is no need for an inquest," said Garth. "It was clearly an accident. I have known Mercer was a man for some time. Mrs. Abercrombie knew it when she engaged him. He was really a detective from an agency.

"What?" cried Loring.

"And so," Garth went on, "you will be spared the annoyance of an inquest and the body will be removed at once, if you wish."

"If Mercer was from an agency, it will be easy to get in touch with them," suggested Redmayne.

"Doubtless," agreed Doctor Garth. "Will not the address of the agency be found in Mrs. Abercrombie's notebook? Or perhaps letters from the firm."

"Very likely," Redmayne said.

Redmayne and Loring went together to Eileen's room to hunt for the address.

Outwardly friendly, but inwardly at odds, the two hunted for address books or filed letters.

Redmayne returned from his quest.

"I got hold of the place," he said, "the agency, I mean. We found a sort of private notebook of Eileen's that had addresses in it, and there was the Lawton Agency, and beneath it was scribbled the name Mercer."

"I called them up," Loring cut in childishly anxious to get into the limelight.

"What did they say?" asked Hugh, impatiently.

"They said Eileen wanted a clever person and they suggested Mercer who makes a specialty of impersonating a woman."

"But why did Eileen do it?" Hugh persisted.

"We'll have to go to see the agency people and find out all about it," Redmayne said, soothingly.

"Well," Doctor Garth asked, "did they know Mercer's home address, or any thing about his people?"

"Yes, they told me that, and they said they would communicate with his sister, and she will doubtless come out here tomorrow, or telephone instructions."

"I suppose we'd better go, Ken," Van Antwerp said, rising. "Unless you've any further inquiries to make over here."

"No," Ken said. "This tragedy seems to offer no scope for inquiry. It is what the furies used to call an Act of God. No human instrument brought about Mercer's awful fate, and no inquiry can help matters. Come along, Percy, I'm ready."

The Joking CLERGYMAN (No. One)

"The Rev. Dr. Byles," says W. W. Hall in his "Guide-Board to Health, Peace and Competence," published in 1869, "was the most original compound of religion and mirth in the latter part of the last century. With a mind of stable principles, he nevertheless possessed a buoyant flow of spirits, constantly running over with puns or witty conceits.

"Going along the street one day, he found a great crowd gathered near the old North Church, in Boston.

"'Pray, what can the matter be?' he inquired of a small boy.

"'Why, sir!' gasped the stripling, 'there is a man going to fly from the steeple!'

"'Poh! Poh! Poh!' said the jovial old gentleman. 'Did they all come here to see a man fly? Why, I have seen a horsefly.'

"Reader, study how to have a healthful old age, and then, if good, you can afford to be mirthful, like the brave old dominie."

AN agitation has been launched to create a Secretary of Peace in the cabinet, to promote international understanding.

The reason international conditions are so straitlaced now is because nations understand each other too well.

A better plan might be to restrict each international conference delegate to his native language—and bar interpreters.

Then everything could be settled on a comfortable plane of mutual misunderstanding.

"Los Angeles is taking the wind out of London's fashion sails, while Hollywood has robbed Paris of its laurels."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That's the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's oldtime enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just the healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping in the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache, torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one to two of Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

YOUTH URGED TO ENROLL AT ONCE IN PATRIOTIC FLAG CONTEST

MARCH 15 IS SET AS CLOSING DATE IN GREAT EVENT

The closing date for all applications to conduct local flag contests throughout the New England States closes at midnight March 15.

The Flag Contest Editor today makes this announcement in answer to the several hundred letters that he has received from schools and organizations making inquiry in regard to the time extension granted in the grand, nation-wide, patriotic Flag Contest of the United States Flag Association.

March 8 was the orginal date set for this closing by the United States Flag Association. Throughout the United States there were hundreds of schools and organizations, patriotic and civic, in the process of formation which could not have possibly joined within the original date set by the Flag Association.

Therefore, to enable these organizations to enter so that no boy or girl in the United States be barred from taking part in this patriotic and educational movement, Col. James A. Moss, president-general of the United States Flag Association, consented to a week's extension of time, making the closing date March 15.

ALL INVITED

Hence, the Flag Contest Editor of the Boston Evening American, which is the New England regional sponsoring newspaper in this contest, urging them to enroll at once.

To the boys and girls of Boston, and in fact, of all Suffolk County, the Flag Contest Editor calls attention that there is now in operation what is called a "Flag Contest Board at Large." This board is in charge of George L. McDermott, 109 Peterborough st, Boston.

This board will take care of every boy and girl who has not as yet enrolled with the flag questions to Legion posts in this area who have already formed contest units.

Chairman McDermott also wishes to announce that he will take care of boys and girls in sections known as Greater Boston. For example: Boys and girls who live in Quincy, Newton, Milton, and any other city or town where there is not an active unit operating, Chairman McDermott will be very glad to accept their enrolment in his "Flag Contest Board at Large."

The active interest that Chairman McDermott is displaying in the Flag Contest offers to the hundreds of boys and girls in Boston and Greater Boston a perfect opportunity of entering the contest, and thereby gives all a chance to become a winner for the trip around the world and also the two weeks' pilgrimage to America's famous patriotic shrines.

THANKS GIVEN

The Flag Contest Editor wishes to take this opportunity to thank the school superintendents, principals and teachers, and heads of patriotic and civic organizations who have so far joined this Flag Contest for their superb cooperation.

The Flag Contest Editor also extends his thanks to the school superintendents, principals and teachers who are not conducting contests in their schools, for the generous response and co-operation that they are extending to the American Legion and other organizations, by recommending to the pupils under their charge to join this wonderful educational, as well as patriotic, movement.

To show the scope of the Contest to date, with some days yet to go, before the date set for application closing of March 15, the Flag Contest Editor wishes to state that public and parochial schools throughout New England have responded nobly.

The Chester L. Briggs Post No. 47, American Legion, Houlton, Me., writes that they be sent at least 300 copies of the flag questions to use in the schools. To Roland G. Findlay, commander of the post, the Flag Contest Editor extends his congratulations.

The Literary Club of the Revere high school is most active in this great Contest.

St. Joseph's high school, Newport, R. I.; the Richmond high school, Richmond, Me.; Gilmanton Iron Works School, Gilmanton, N. H.; the Peabody high school, Peabody, and the Junior high school, Norwood, have also entered the Contest.

Keen Interest Shown By Boy and Girl Scouts

The Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts in Boston, and in New England as well, are working with keen interest to win as many of the 150 awards as possible which are to be granted to the winners in this contest.

Just think! The Metropolitan Firemen's Post of the American Legion and the Railway Mail Post are both sponsoring the contests. Even the Metropolitan Firemen find time to assist in educating the youths of America about "Old Glory," and the Railway Mail Post of the American Legion, many of its members who work nightly traveling hundreds of miles over steel rails and who are obliged to sleep during the day, have agreed to give up a few hours' rest in order to enable some boy or girl gain a two weeks' education in three months by winning the trip around the world.

So another message is sent to the boys and girls in New England—a "Flag Board at Large" headed by some prominent citizen of your city may operate as a unit. This board will then accept applications from all boys and girls who wish to enter the contest but who live in communities in which there may be no contest unit. Thus, this board provides the way to enroll every boy and girl who wishes to do so and offers an opportunity to compete in this contest.

The Boston Evening American today prints a partial list of schools and organizations that are participating, which may help some boy or girl outside of Boston who wishes to enroll. This list is printed to inform youths who wish to enroll:

PLAN NEW FILM FOR GLORIA SWANSON

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, March 7—Gloria Swanson is evidently not discouraged with her attempts to make "Queen Kelly" for Pathe and neither is Pathe worried over the difficulties that have followed this picture since the day of its birth. The reason I say this is because Joseph Kennedy, while on a recent visit to our fair city, made all arrangements for another Swanson special to be started April 1. Now you know if he were worried he'd never make another Swanson special.

To go on with my story, Ernest Pascal, author of "The Marriage Bed," and Edmund Goulding have been signed to write an original for La Belle Swanson. The title is as yet unknown, but the theme. But we are told that the dialogue goes along with the scenario and that both Goulding and Pascal are well qualified to write dialogue, being writers of reputation.

It wouldn't surprise me if Goulding directed Miss Swanson's next. He was called in as expert adviser on the scenes of "Queen Kelly." For all I know "Queen Kelly" may be another "Broadway Melody" for Norma Strohein's pictures have a way of proving surprises, sometimes good ones, sometimes bad ones.

IRVING THALBERG slipped away to New York on a few moments' notice. So quietly did he take his departure that only those closest to him know that today he is traveling over the desert on his way East to confer with Nicholas Schenck. AMONG the absorbed spectators at the premiere of "The Strange Interlude" was Ann Harding. Miss Harding, whom husband is Harry Bannister, one of the principal players, came west to visit her husband and take a holiday. She says she has no intention of making a picture while she is here. She has had such a strenuous season on the stage and she wants to do is rest and rest.

NOT very many times do we hear of a producer becoming a director. In a few cases directors have turned producers, but Harry Joe Brown will reverse the usual order of things. Next year he was the producer of the Ken Maynard pictures for Charles Rogers of First National. Now he becomes active director for the cowboy in his First Universal thriller. After telling other people what he wanted for so long he ought to know what to do himself.

Anyway, we hope Sam will soon get better, for he is on person we can always rely on to put up a good argument with us.

PROHIBITION CALLED "CURSE" BY CONGRESSMAN

John J. Gorman, representative in Congress from Illinois, and formerly in the postoffice service, declared at Chicago today, in commenting to the Hearst newspapers on the $25,000 temperance award contest:

"I am glad to repeat what I said on the floor of Congress. There can be no doubt about it that prohibition is the present-day curse of the United States. It is slowly but surely destroying the moral and physical fibre of the future fathers and mothers of America.

"It is breaking down respect for all law by open and notorious violation of this one law. It is making police courts out of the courtrooms where once dignity, decorum, and a high standard of ethics prevailed, the federal courts of the United States.

"As a social experiment, prohibition is a failure. It was foredoomed to failure because men did not grow out of the customs of the people. A people can not be legislated "good," they must be taught goodness in the impressionistic years of early childhood; at the mother's knee, and then, through the various stages of life, as they progress.

PROTECTS MORALS

"No one will deny that temperance is a virtue. No one will deny that temperance is for the well-being of the human race. It is temperance we should aim for, and in the interests of real temperance and to protect the health and morals of our children the Volstead act must be changed. In its place a law should be enacted which will encourage temperance.

"Such a law as will permit the manufacture and sale, under well-regulated conditions, of 2.75 per cent beer, would be the best contribution the United States could make to the cause of real temperance. This is the scientific standard adopted by Denmark and approved by its various temperance societies. It is the standard of beer consumed by the people of Denmark with no drunkenness, and it has decreased the appetite for strong liquors.

"It was the standard adopted by the United States during the World War for the purpose of preserving foodstuffs. It was accepted by the people, and it did not end with increased consumption of hard liquor.

BEER URGED

"If the people know that they can obtain a good, wholesome beer, the thrill of breaking the law will have disappeared. Two and seventy-five hundredths beer has been demonstrated to be good and wholesome, and of sufficient alcoholic content to satisfy the thirst, by such well-known authorities as Max Henius, of the Wahl-Henius Institute of Consulting Chemists, and Adolph Dirian, one of the foremost brew-masters of America.

"They say it is palatable and will be satisfying if given a trial. No one can authoritatively say that it will fail until it is given a trial.

"Some such modification as this is necessary to change the mass thinking on the subject of prohibition. It will have a tendency to stop the agitation and unrest among the people.

"It will divert their minds from the subject of prohibition and induce them to indulge in thinking about other things in life.

"It will decrease the drinking of poison which now circulates under the names of whiskey and gin.

"It will decrease violations of the law.

"It will restore respect for the law.

"It will take the subject of prohibition out of politics where it has been thrust by the Volstead Act with such harmful results and determine the election of judges on the bench, lawmakers, law enforcers and administrative officers.

ASKS COMPROMISE

"It is within the power of the Congress to define 2.75 per cent beer as a scientific standard and within the confines of temperance.

"Let us all face the facts and pull together.

"Let us put aside personal prejudices.

"Let the dry extremists and the wet extremists meet on this common ground.

"Legislation is ever the result of compromise and adjustment. Let both sides compromise a little and adjust the standard of prohibition, so that the people of the United States who desire it may have 2.75 per cent beer in the place of the poison they are now consuming."

John Sullivan, president of the New York State Federation of Labor, and a leader in the national movement for modification of the Volstead act, said today that the next step by organized labor on prohibition would depend on the action of President Hoover on the request of organized labor for representation on the fact-finding commission he is to name to investigate the prohibition situation.

President Sullivan said:

"The American Federation of Labor through its executive council has asked President Hoover for representation on the commission. We will advance a program for modification of the Volstead act if President Hoover acts favorably on our request.

STAND OF LABOR

"Labor has been pronounced in its stand in favor of modification for which most of the State labor federations have declared. In New York alone, 900,000 men have declared for light wines and beer. Our stand is on an entirely nonpartisan basis."

Prussian Prince Will 'See America First'

Berlin, March 7 (INS)—Prince Louis Ferdinand, second son of the former German Crown Prince, who has just sailed for New York, will tour the United States at the suggestion of his parents before going to South America on a diplomatic mission, it was revealed today by Major Von Muelzner, adjutant to the ex-Crown Prince.

Says State Failed to Protect Autoist

By FRANK A. GOODWIN

(Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles and Author of the Goodwin-Boston Evening American Automobile Insurance Bill.)

One serious factor in the standing compulsory automobile insurance law has been the financial responsibility of certain companies which wrote insurance policies.

In 1927, two or three insurance companies went out of business, and one of them had issued policies to 9000 car owners. I remember that, as registrar, I was compelled to notify those 9000 owners that their plates would be withdrawn unless they immediately took out new insurance. What they had to pay for that new insurance was a dead loss to them.

That was bad enough, but last year, the Car Owners' Mutual was placed in the hands of a receiver, and some 45,000 auto owners—with every reason to think they were protected by the State since the State had permitted the company to do business—were forced to take out additional insurance in order to keep their plates.

Furthermore, there are some 9000 or more claims against the Car Owners' Mutual and there is insufficient money to meet them. This means either that the claimants will remain unsatisfied or that the unlucky policy owners will be forced to respond to make full settlement possible.

Under the provisions of the Goodwin-Boston Evening American Insurance Bill, Illness Bill 220 no such thing could happen.

The failure of these various insurance companies which were allowed to write policies which car owners are compelled by law to buy brings forcibly to the public eye the fact that the State has practically no control over insurance companies until after they collect from the people, and then the only power that can be exercised is to ask for the appointment of a receiver.

Of those timid souls who are fearful of the State's going into business, I would inquire whether they can suggest a better method now prevailing, by which the State orders its citizens to hand over money to insurance companies for service which they do not always get.

It is rather interesting to see some of our best citizens now offering suggestions to remedy existing conditions, but the remedies proposed seem advanced to head off the inevitable State fund rather than to cure the evils of the present system.

State Street influence may delay the State fund, but that influence cannot stop it because it is the only remedy, and it is right.

THE FIRE INSURANCE AGENT

—A Useful Factor in Every Community

In no other business does agent mean so much as in the fire insurance business as transacted by the Stock Companies.

More than a century ago these companies established relations with property owners through responsible local representatives.

The system has grown with the insurance needs of the country. Today hundreds of the best citizens of every state are in contact with the public as representatives of the Stock Companies.

In no other field is the agent entrusted with greater authority.

The Stock Fire Insurance agent has at his command all the facilities of the companies in engineering and research to make life and property safer. He has access to systematic hazard measurements; authentic information about proper building construction; the work of Underwriters' Laboratories in testing materials and devices, and other forms of service for the benefit of the insuring public.

In every community the insurance agents are leaders in civic affairs. They have been faithful factors in the steady reductions that have been made in the average rate charged for fire insurance during the last twenty years.

The local agent is in position to know his client and his client's property. He is prepared to study the needs of each one—brings to each the special service required—and may save you money if you will permit him to use the many available facilities and will cooperate with him in improving your risk.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germs.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes that line the throat, stop irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

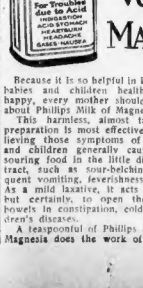
MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA



Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

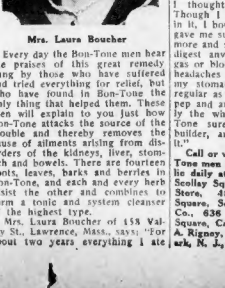
A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information," which will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

'I Certainly Felt Discouraged and Blue, Before I Took Bon-Tone,' States Lawrence Lady

"I Had Taken Enough Other Remedies to Float a Rowboat, But Without Results"



Mrs. Laura Boucher

Every day the Bon-Tone men hear the praises of this great remedy sung by those who have used it and tried everything for relief, but who have found in Bon-Tone the only thing that helped them. These men will explain to you just how Bon-Tone attacks the source of the trouble and thereby removes the cause of ailments arising from disorders of the kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels. There are fourteen roots, leaves, barks and berries in Bon-Tone, and each and every herb assist the other and combines to form a tonic and system cleanser of the highest type.

Mrs. Laura Boucher of 158 Valley St., Lawrence, Mass., says: "For about two years, everything I ate soured and fermented in my stomach, filling me up with gas which would crowd my heart and my heart, making me gasp for breath, especially at night. My bowels were very irregular and I always felt lazy, drooping and out of sorts. I'd wake up mornings feeling more tired than on going to bed and I would have a bitter taste like vinegar in my mouth, and a dull headache. After eating I would suffer with heartburn and I certainly felt very much discouraged and blue. I guess I took enough medicine to float a rowboat, but I got only slight relief. I read about Bon-Tone in the local papers and the good it was doing hundreds of local people, so I thought why not try it too. Though I had little faith or hope in it, I bought one bottle, and this gave me such relief that I got some more and now I am able to eat and digest any kind of food, with no gas or bloating following. No more sour stomach, headaches, cramps in my stomach, and my bowels are regular as clockwork. I feel full of pep and ambition and sleep soundly the whole night through. Bon-Tone sure is a wonderful body builder, and I shall always praise it."

Call or write to either of the Bon-Tone men who are meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square only; Austin's Drug Store, 486 Broadway, Perkins Square, South Boston; Cole Drug Co., 636 Mass. Avenue, Central Square, Cambridge; or write to W. A. Rigney, 94 Academy Street, Newark, N. J., for a free booklet.

5 100-Foot Engines for the B. & M.

Five new "super-power" locomotives of advanced types—100 feet long each—will be put to couple and heavier than the heaviest now in its main line freight service—are being acquired for the Boston & Maine Railroad, the road announced today. These bring to a total of 25 the roads "super-power" fleet, making the longest continuous engine hauls in New England. They will cost about $100,000, raising the road's investment in this fast, economical power to $2,300,000 within 20 months.

The new engine will weigh, ready for service, 337 tons, and will carry 24 tons of coal, instead of 18; and 18,000 gallons of water, instead of 12,000. They will be able to haul long trains from the Boston & Maine's gateways, west of the Hudson river to the seaboard with only one coal and water stop.

RADIO TONIGHT OF ROUTINE NATURE

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

RADIO follows a routine course this evening after the hectic activities of the inauguration. The only item of arresting interest is the return of the Selberling Singers, that excellent quartet whose weekly broadcasts have always been high lights in the radio firmament. Erno Rapse will remain as guest conductor, at least for this evening. James Melton will sing "Little Boy Blue," and there will be the usual piano duet by Phil Ohman and Victor Arden. Please stand by for the Confidential Guide.

7:30—WEEI—Studebaker Champions. Local orchestra and soloists in lively music.

7:30—WEEI — Coward Comfort Hour. Somewhat unusual type of tuneful orchestral and solo music without a single "popular" song.

8:30—WNAC—Then and Now. Songs of yesteryear and yesterweek.

9:00—WNAC—Aunt Jemima. Southern melodies and negro plantation atmosphere.

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Why the Governor?

Why Run to Beacon Hill With a Problem So Distinctly Local as the Building of Our Schoolhouses?

Recommending the abolition of the Boston Schoolhouse Commission—on the ground that there has been both waste and delay in the construction and repair of school buildings—a Special Survey Commission suggests in its place a board made up of one member appointed by the School Committee, one appointed by the Mayor and one designated by the Governor.

Why the Governor, who is as likely to come from Pittsfield or Worcester or Greenfield as he is to be a Bostonian?

Up to this time, schoolhouse commissioners have been appointed by succeeding mayors. The jobs are political. In some instances, land has been taken by the commissions at an expense to the city of thousands of dollars and NEVER USED FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES.

Citing but two examples of delay, the Special Survey Committee, Judge Michael Sullivan chairman, reports that it has taken as long as FIVE years to construct a high school building and FOUR years to construct an eight-room elementary building.

That the present method is unbusinesslike, if not vicious, the community appears to be in agreement, but in the name of Home Rule why trot to the Governor with a matter of purely local concern?

In the opinion of the Boston Evening American a much better plan than that suggested by the Sullivan Commission has been outlined by Mr. Richard Shaw, as follows:

1—The School Committee to submit to the Mayor the names of three educational administrators, from among whom he could select one.

2—The Boston Society of Architects to submit to the Mayor the names of three architects, from among whom he could select one.

3—The Master Builders' Association to submit to the Mayor the names of three builders, from among whom he could select one.

Under the Shaw plan the commissioners would select a deputy, who would give his entire time to the routine of the department.

The Governor already names Boston's police commissioner, licensing board, metropolitan park and water boards, Elevated Railway trustees, municipal court judges and finance commission.

That's enough.

Strange Silence

Why Is the Resolution to Investigate Vestris Disaster Slumbering in Committee?

Senator Robert F. Wagner is not the only person who would like to know why the United States Senate allows the resolution to investigate the Vestris disaster to remain slumbering in committee. Many thousands of Americans who take passage in foreign vessels plying between ports of the western hemisphere are vitally interested. So are American shippers on such vessels. So are all other persons who believe that safety at sea is essential to commerce.

Senator Wesley L. Jones, chairman of the Committee on Commerce, to which the Wagner resolution was referred, remains silent, and his silence appears significant in the light of the proved facts. There were 110 lives lost on the Vestris, and most of them were American lives. The Federal attorney's inquiry revealed that the Vestris was not properly inspected; that the lifeboats were rotten, the crew undisciplined, and that the ship should never have been permitted to leave port.

Obviously, the steamship inspection service should be overhauled. Foreign ships plying between American ports should be subject to American laws of inspection.

This Language of Ours

It Is Disastrous to Abandon Its Perfection

College professors recently have entertained a liberal attitude toward the expansion of the English language. Slang has been formally introduced in the best of society. A facility in the effective use of slang is really quite "highbrow." Most newspapers pay their respects to the dictionary by using quotation marks.

There is an excellent reason for the use of a certain type of slang. Why demand that language stand still while everything else goes through a process of evolution and growth? A crisp word is more expressive than a tangled phrase, and the purpose of language is expression.

The ungrammatical backwoodsman, with a wealth of idiom, is a much more entertaining conversationalist than the sophomore struggling intensely with his syntax almost to the point of losing his story.

Such arguments as these have given rise to a fallacious popular impression that "anything goes." That is just the reverse of the truth. The acceptable use of slang requires a keener intellect and more originality than the use of textbook English.

Language is the music, the sculpture, the painting and the architecture of the individual who has not had the opportunity or talent to specialize in any of the fine arts. To abandon its perfection is to declare the choice of being the mucker, rather than Michael Angelo.

The Snake Died

So That Is News

Everything comes true in time. Goldsmith wrote, in his Elegy on the Death of a Mad Dog:

"The man recovered of the bite,
The dog it was that died."

In the reptile house of the St. Louis Zoo, a dangerously poisonous gaboun viper bit Mr. Perkins, the curator. Mr. Perkins is getting well, the viper is dead.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND.

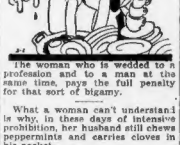
MANY a young wife's love has been diluted by too much dishwater, and many a bridegroom's glamorous passion has been weakened by the struggle with the furnace.

Love is the strange, new emotion, which makes you shudder at the memory of all the foolish things you've done and all the little imitation romances that once seemed so glamorous.

Care may have killed a lot of people, but "Don't care" is exterminating most of them, these merry gin-and-gasoline days.

The meanest thing a woman can do to a philandering husband is to divorce him and put him back into the dangerous position where he doesn't dare to make love to the women for the love that one of them will marry him.

When a man actually admits that he "thinks he is falling in love," he is already down for the third time, and no lifeguard can drag him out.



the woman who is wedded to a professional and to a man at the same time, pays the full penalty for that sort of bigamy.

What a woman can't understand is why, in these days of intensive prohibition, her husband still chews peppermints and carries cloves in his pocket.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Give, if thou canst, an alms; if not, afford,
Instead of what, a sweet and gentle word. —Herrick.

The beginning of philosophy is a consciousness of your own weakness and inability in necessary things. —Epictetus.

Health and cheerfulness mutually beget each other. —Addison.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

CERTAIN women have a trick which drives men into doddering imbecility or murder. They say one thing and mean another. Then they get all smoked up because their males take them at their word.

For example, they say to Friend Husband: "Yes, of course, I would like to have your sister visit us She's such a dear girl—I'm crazy about her!"

What they really mean is this: "You're a monster even to suggest that your sister should visit us She's a cat and I detest her. She has never treated me decently since I married you and if you had the slightest love or consideration for me you would have realized that and resented it and refused to have another thing to do with her."

But does Friend Husband know that these subconscious ravings are going on? He does not. He believes what The Little Woman says. He sends for sister. Then what happens? Plenty happens Hell bursts loose in that household, pronto.

The lady wife is not only mad at sister but she is also "cut-to-the-heart" because she has not been properly understood by the scoundrel she has married. If he had really loved her—etc., etc., etc.

That's one example—here's another.

"Some of the boys are having a stag tonight—" phones Mr. Jones from the office. "Guess I won't be home for dinner, dearie."

"Why certainly, that's all right, have a good time darling," coos Mrs. Jones in return.

Mr. Jones goes on his way rejoicing—but Mrs. Jones sits right down and has a good cry.

How could he? HOW COULD SHE? He knows perfectly well how she feels about stag-parties—going off with a bunch of men after she's been waiting at home alone all day And probably it isn't a stag anyway—probably it's Another Woman But even if it is a stag party—how could he do it on THIS DAY! THEIR WEDDING ANNIVERSARY? To deliberately stay away on their wedding anniversary—etc., etc., etc.

Has Mrs. Jones reminded Mr. Jones that it is their wedding anniversary? She has not. She expects him to remember it. All fine, sensitive, intelligent, honorable, decent men should remember wedding anniversaries. The fact that Mr. Jones has not done so—or, having done so preferred a Stag Party or Another Woman to a sentimental celebration with his wife—is proof positive that he is a Coarse, Unfeeling Brute.

When Mr. Jones comes home that night what does he get?

He gets The Works.

And after it is all over he says to himself for the millionth time that women are mysterious, unreasonable creatures and that no man can understand them any way. And almost every man will agree with him.

I heartily sympathize with Mr. Jones, but I can't agree with his statement.

There's nothing mysterious about the female sex. There always have been plenty of reasonable women who think straight and say what they mean, and their number is increasing. The Secret Sorrow Sisterhood exasperates real women as much as they do men. But there's a reason for them—two reasons, in fact.

The first reason is male vanity; the second is female conceit.

Many males prefer female nitwits because, thereby, they shine by contrast. Why do so many men marry something the cat wouldn't drag in? That's why.

And the second reason is that many silly women get a big bang out of being misunderstood. There's really nothing to understand about them—they're about as complicated as a hen canary. But they like to feel that they're all full of subtleties and complexities which some Big, Busy Boy should spend all his time unsnarling.

However, I think I had better warn you, sisters, that this line isn't getting over as well as it did once. There are so many ladies nowadays who are quite willing to be understood that the mysterious mamas are getting less and less popular. So I advise you to take it up in time. Learn to speak up! Say what you mean! Don't act like a human crossword puzzle! You've got a couple of lungs, a set of bronchial tubes and a perfectly good tongue—USE THEM! SECRET SORROWS BUY YOU NOTHING IN 1929!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 7—Wall st. is the most highly sensitized area in the world. The slightest quiver is felt in San Francisco a second later, but despite the tension it has the precision of a splendidly geared watch. Even the skilled operators do not grasp its organized coherency.

The shrewdest of traders cannot explain the mysterious movements which result in such sudden turmoil as was revealed lately. Nor can they check them, as was evidenced by the experience of the deft manipulator, W. C. Durant, who once lost 92 millions in a day. Wisdom and blind stupidity often play equally important roles.

A silly rumor whispered in an uptown club has been known to penetrate the street ten minutes later. The public which looks on from the sidelines regards it all as a daily madness of human gazelles leaping about in meaningless confusion and apparently getting nowhere.

From time the Exchange opens at 10 o'clock until the gong rings for closing, the trading floor shimmers in a wave of hysteria. Men run around in circles, often pulling their hair, screaming and laughing hysterically. And now and then one sneaks off to end it all.

Wall St. is a daily example of how much strain the nervous system can stand. In time the great excitement seems a tonic instead of a toxic. Men will leave the floor in the afternoon with the cataphysical pallor of some malignancy, and return after a night's sleep as fresh as the proverbial daisy.

This may go on for years, and the only permanent physical effect seems to be what is known as "the trader's look." The lowliest clerk can spot the professional instantly. His features have been whetted to a cunning sharpness and his eyes have a feverish brightness. The street "got him."

A NEW pulpiteer has come to Wall Street since the passing of "The Bishop of Wall Street," a kindly man in clerical robes who mounted his portable rostrum daily to deliver a sermon to the luncheon crowds. His successor is a negro who takes his stand across from the Morgan building and passes out the daily spiritual dole.

THE Lambs—no one calls it the Lambs Club—is in its 54th year, and despite its pretentious quarters in 44th st. may have a new clubhouse soon. The club was the outgrowth of a little supper party at down-town Delmonico's in 1874. It was so pleasant an organization was effected to perpetuate the idea. London had the original Lamb Club. The name, the legend goes, was bestowed by a congenial crowd of actors who after a pleasant dinner would say: "Let's go over to the Lambs"—meaning the hospitable home of Charles and Mary Lamb.

BROADWAY'S increasing number of doughnut shops has inspired a wag to call it "The Greatest Way." That's not much of a wheeze, but there may be some feeble minded reader who will care for it.

NEW YORK'S newest medical center, jutting skyward from the upper reaches of Riverside Drive, is the largest experiment of its kind the world has ever known. The massed group of towering skyscrapers stretches for many blocks and contains beds for 3177 and was built at an expense of $25,000,000. It is the co-ordination of more than a dozen hospitals, thus permitting each to retain its individual identity. Over the entrances reads: "For the poor of New York, without regard to race, creed or color, and supported by voluntary contributions."

A FEATURE of the Medical Center is the operating amphitheatre seating 160 spectators, each seat equipped with a telephone, enabling the occupant—pardon the shudder—to listen to the heartbeat of the patient.

THE latest in sophisticated magazines is The American Sketch, with Beverly Nichols, the young English stylist, as editor. Mr. Nichols has become one of the seasonal wits of the drawing room, suave, debonair and a chock full of epigrams. In the brochure one notices New York has patented its own annul. That many useless and adorable persons are suffering from acute cripes de nerfs and that restaurant debutantes are yawning with a mouse of disconsent at barkin' tongues in aspic. That gives you a rough idea of its heigh-ho-ing.

Einstein Once More

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE Einstein theory seems to possess for many readers the fatal attraction of the "mountain of adamant" in the Arabian Nights, which drew out the nails from approaching ships and left them to fall to pieces in the offing. And many an adventurous excursionist on the seductive galleons that fly the pennant of "Einstein made easy" has found out that a mental duckling is the conclusion of the voyage.

The Einstein theory is built on mathematics and constructed of mathematics, and it exists in the mind, only as a mathematical theorem. It is not Einstein but his amplifiers and would-be clarifiers who have made his theories appear to be the inventions of a mystificator, or the seriously intended commentaries of the bedlamite on the adventures of Alice in Wonderland. I do not find him writing any such nonsense as is sometimes set out to shine in the light of his fame.

He is, of course, aware of the facilities which his speculations offer for making paradoxes that will cause novices to stare and rub their eyes, but he doesn't offer any encouragement to that sort of Barnumism. In his own attempt to give the layman some idea of what the latest form of the theory means, he resorts to none of the vain expedients of those who hand out wooden nutmegs, but honestly tries to give the reader a fundamental conception which will, at least, suggest to any rational mind the nature of the problem on which he is working.

No man can play chess who has not first learned the rules and the moves of the game. So no man who is entirely ignorant of "higher mathematics" (ignorance which is no disgrace to those who have no use for such knowledge) should expect to follow the processes by which the Einstein theory has been built up. One who had never seen a chessboard might as well try to understand the complications of the "knight's moves."

In his explanation of his latest study of the effects of relativity Einstein tries to lead the reader to a comprehension of what is meant by the "field." Students of electricity and magnetism currently make use of the term "field." It means for them the space surrounding a magnet, or an electric current, in which magnetic or electric phenomena take place. So a gravitation "field" is the space within which gravitative effects are felt. In a broad sense, space in general is a "field" wherein electric, magnetic and gravitative effects are all manifested.

The "ether theory" made it easy for everybody to understand how light could be conveyed in waves across space, because it represented space as filled everywhere with the ether. Similarly, it was easy to see that electricity could be conveyed by the same intangible medium. Maxwell showed that light could be simply explained as an electro-magnetic wave in the ether; but gravitation, though it always obeying the same laws, could not be likened to electricity. It did not appear to consist of electro-magnetic waves. The gravitation "field" and the electro-magnetic "field," though they might occupy the same space, seemed to be independent of one another. What Einstein has set out to do is to show that in fact there is but one field," the "spacetime continuum," and this unitary field accounts at once for all three of the fundamental phenomena, electricity, magnetism and gravitation.

The ether theory is thrown overboard, but nevertheless, space is not conceived as mere emptiness. On the contrary, it is a continuum, having its peculiar "structure." On account of this structure of space the phenomena of both electricity and gravitation takes place necessarily and require no explanation; by the action of supposition forces. Einstein may be right and he may be wrong—he himself admits that much more remains to be done—but what he is trying to do can never be explained by attempting to play "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out.
